Hike Hot Lunches

instead of the present 35 cents. The increase is the first in the district's history. Farmington in 5½ years whereas most neighboring school districts increased the price of their lunch programs last September. The School Board was assured that the late changes still put Farmington in the same range as other districts. The increase was laid to the rapidly skyrocketing price of food and higher labor costs. Also, much of the free government food which the school district received in past years is being channeled to Viet Nam.
