

State Delta Zetas Plan Style Show

The Michigan Council of Delta Zeta Sorority will present a fashion show at the Detroit Marriott at noon Saturday, Nov. 11.

Proceeds from the event will be used to support projects of the sorority's national philanthropy, The American Hearing Society.

The fashion show, to be titled "Flight Into Fashion" will be flown in by Delta Air Lines and will feature colorful creations from Jamaica, Florida, and California as well as sophisticated styles from New York. Norma Wilds will serve as commentator.

General Chairman is Mrs. Laurence Trevarrow of Bloomington Hills. The treasurer is Mrs. H. Lee Townsend of Farmington. Delta Zetas in this area include Mrs. John Stapleton, Mrs. Daniel Bures, Mrs. Donald Massey, Mrs. Douglas Myers, and Mrs. Alice McCann. Detroit area Delta Zetas have supported many hard-of-hearing centers. The hearing center at Wayne State University has had books bound for their permanent collection and The Detroit Hearing and Speech Center received an audiometer.

The undenominational Deaf Religious Program at the Episcopal Church in Dearborn, conducted by a Delta Zeta and her husband, Ray, and Mrs. Kenneth Davis, is also helped through gifts and projects.

Auxiliary Seeks Vietnam Names

The names of area young men serving in Vietnam are being sought by the Ladies Auxiliary to Livonia Post 3941 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Auxiliary has already prepared and sent 36 packages, but list of names has been exhausted.

They ask that any resident who knows of names serving in Vietnam call either KE 2-5295 or 273-1157.

Donations of sweetened kool-aid or ice tea and money are also being accepted for the packages.

Women On The Go Farmington Girls Romp In Europe

They landed back in New York with exactly five cents between them.

And no one could have been less concerned than Gail Courville and Mary Jo Lindbloom. For these two enterprising young women also brought back from Europe a wealth of memories collected in five months of travel through 11 countries.

THEIR ADVENTURE was just a dream when tall, dark-haired Gail and taller, blonde Mary Jo graduated from Farmington High School in June of 1965. Determined to make it reality, they went to work and saved every cent they could.

"You never saw such misers," recalled Gail. "We wouldn't spend a cent that wasn't absolutely necessary," added Mary Jo.

BY MAY they had paid-up round trip airline tickets, a paid-for two month pass to ride the railroads of Europe, and $1,000 each.

They took off, figuring their funds would permit them three months' travel.

"But we found we could live most places so inexpensively, we managed to stay five months," they explained.

THEY LANDED first in Luxembourg, then went on to Germany, France, Spain, Italy, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Holland, Belgium, and England. Then back to Spain and the island of Majorca, and one final trip to Germany.

Trying to chronicle all their fun here would be like packing "Gone with the Wind" into a few pages.

But they could describe some highlights.

THE MOST impressive sight they saw was the Colosseum in Rome, both girls agreed.

YOUNG TRAVELERS — Mary Jo Lindbloom left, and Gail Courville admire the mug they bought in Germany.

They took an apartment in London, and had planned to get jobs for a while before returning.

"But we had trouble getting working papers," Gail said. "Probably it was just as well — we were going to work in a department store and I could just see us trying to make change in British money."

THEY HEADED back to Spain for more fun, they finished off the trip for a visit to October boerfest in Munich, Germany.

"It was so crowded that we had to sleep in the park—in the rain—the first night," they said. "But it was worth it. The festival was wonderful."

So was the whole trip, they agreed, worth every cent. Both are determined to return some time.

AND DID they miss anything about life here?

"Modern plumbing, and driving cars, and getting a sandwich without paying for it, and AMERICAN MEN."

Gail proved she meant that last by popping on her third finger left-hand the engagement ring presented by Howard George of Pontiac soon after her return. The girls had visited Mary Jo's boy friend, Roy Mable of Farmington, who is stationed in Germany.

Settle down they may, but the memories are sure to stay.

m. m. memos

I've often wondered what breed of man it took to sit through a blizzard to see a football game. Or, more particularly, what breed of woman, for we tend to think of our men as the real sports fans, while we go along for the companionship and the color.

I found out last weekend—I sat through not one, but two blizzards to see a grid game.

True, they were mighty small blizzards. One came just before the game the game between Michigan State and Ohio State, and the sun was shining brightly by kickoff time.

The other made the band's halftime maneuvers only faintly visible, and again the skies cleared as if by magic for the second half kickoff.

And I must point out there were extenuating circumstances for my being in my snowy predicament. We left home in the brightest and crispest of sunshine, so I certainly didn't know we'd be sitting in a snowstorm.

But I did get an inkling of the special fun that is to be found at a sports contest when the skies don't smile.

You are glad for the fellow fans packed in around you—not only for the protection they offer from the wind, but also for the warmth of spirit that pulls together a snow-pelted crowd.

You also appreciate more the efforts of those down on the field, whether they are chasing a wet pigskin or toting a chilly instrument.

I'll be more understanding in the future of the fan who wouldn't miss that big game—whatever the weather.
