

Schoolcraft Cagers Open Against Concordia Fri.

Tom Roncoli, making his debut as basketball coach at Schoolcraft College will unveil the 1967-68 team Friday, Dec. 1, when Schoolcraft meets Concordia College of Ann Arbor in the Northville Community Center at 8 p.m.

Roncoli will suit up a team composed largely of freshmen which contains only three men who saw action for the Blue and Gold last year when Schoolcraft won only three games.

The two lettermen are Steve Moore, 6-4 sophomore who played his high school basketball at Farmington, and Don Cranford, 6-0, former Plymouth cager. Only other veteran on the squad is Fred Nett, ex-Claremont cager, who saw some action last season.

Al Jose, 6-2 sophomore, who opened last season in uniform but who fell by the wayside at the semester change because of scholastic difficulties, has conquered the eligibility problem and is back.

Brightest among a group of promising freshmen are Mike Kenyon, 6-3 forward from Detroit St. Gregory; Mike McCauley, 6-0 guard from Bentley; Karl Gulbriksen, 6-0, who played for Franklin last year; and Nate Lulbrand, 5-9 guard from Plymouth.

These four, along with Moore, have the inside track for starting slots against Concordia. Behind them are Nett and Jose, Bill Evans, 6-2 former Plymouth cager who was cut last season; Ron Lowe, 5-10, who was Lulbrand's running mate at Plymouth; Dan Parker, 6-2 ex-Thurston High cager; and Duane Storm, 5-9, who played his high school basketball at Bentley.

Two other sophomores may join the ranks in January at the semester break. They are John Felmet, 6-0, a letterman last year who is having eligibility difficulties at the moment; and Dan Freels, 5-10, former Claremont cager.

Concordia, one of the Blue and Gold mainstays last year, may wear Schoolcraft livery for only five games. He is expected to transfer to Eastern Michigan University in January.

The Blue and Gold moves into conference play quickly, following Friday's game with Concordia with a meeting at Auburn Hills (Oakland Community College) on Saturday, Dec. 2.
