

Legislators Blast MSU Daily For Marijuana Editorial

AN EDITORIAL advocating the legalization of marijuana has drawn several blasts from state legislators. The editorial appeared last week in the Michigan State University newspaper, the State News. The most recent federal aid to the state I-75 highway project if the state does not explain its reasons for turning down a low bidder last week. The bid was for 1.9 miles of the I-75 project near Willow in Arenac County, Hiram 1936 to 1940 when the union was going through its strike-ridden days of organizing the auto firms in Detroit. Martin had left Michigan for Michigan in 1961 and at the time of this death was working as a labor counselor for the Tulare and Kings County Employers Council. His death appeared to be caused by a heart attack.

THE CONGREGATION of the Sisters of St. Joseph, headquartered in Nazareth, near Kalamazoo, has approved restoration of Baptismal names for its 900 member nuns. It has also approved on a controlled, experimental basis the use of contemporary clothing by some of its teaching nuns.

LEGISLATIVE LEADERS who met with Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken this week apparently decided that there is no chance for a $900,000 state grant to keep Inkster schools open. Other means, such as a system of loans, will probably be used to keep the schools open, Rep. William P. Ryan (D-Detroit) indicated. Legislators are reluctant to set a precedent in the Inkster case that would encourage other school districts in trouble to demand state grants to bail them out.

attack came from state Sen. John F. Toop (R-Cadillac), who said that he was "shocked and amazed" and would fight any attempt to legalize marijuana with "the last drop of blood in my body." He added that he would be the first to admit that "pot" is not addictive, but he said, "what's not what concerns me. It's what it starts once you start to smoke grass."

FEDERAL OFFICIALS have indicated that they may cut off

Construction Company of Wixom, the low bidder, was turned down without an explanation, Duane Jones, director of the Federal Bureau of Roads office in Lansing said.

HOMER MARTIN, the man who was elected the first president of the United Auto Workers, died Monday in Los Angeles at the age of 66. Martin had at one time been a Baptist preacher and a track star. He was president of the UAW from
