Lulu Sprague Hutchins

The funeral of Mrs. Clarence Hutchins, which was held last Saturday, was attended by a large number of friends from Redford, Farmington and numerous other places.

The services were held at the home in Redford by Rev. F. C. Watters, the Methodist minister, and the body was laid at rest in the Farmington cemetery.

On Sunday night the little baby that was born a week previous followed its mother and was laid by her side in the beautiful Oakwood cemetery.

The funeral was a very sad one and the heartfelt sympathy of a very large circle of friends goes out to the disconsolate husband and to the other near relatives.

Mrs. Hutchins was very highly respected and deeply loved by her many friends who sincerely regret her early departure and who will always bear her in fond remembrance.

Lulu Sprague was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sprague and was born in Farmington Feb. 21, 1890, and spent the greater part of her life in this vicinity.

Her mother passed away when Lulu was 11 years of age. After attending Farmington high school she spent nearly three years with her cousin, Miss Grace Sage, in Ypsilanti, where she studied music.

In April, 1912, she was married to Clarence Hutchins and they lived in Farmington until last spring, when they moved to Redford where they bought a home and where Mr. Hutchins was engaged as a clerk.

She passed away Dec. 11, 1913.

Beside the young husband she leaves a son, Ralph William; her father, William Sprague and sister, Mrs. Earl Skarritt, both of Farmington; a sister, Mrs. Fred Carr of Pontiac and a brother, Roy Sprague of Detroit, and other relatives and many friends.

JARS FOR OSTRICH PLUMES

Custom of Pawnbroker's Establishment Gives Valuable Hint to Improvident Man.

"There is no place like a pawnshop for picking up useful hints," said the improvident man. "Every time my circumstances compel me to patronize one I glean some item of general information that almost reconciles me to the necessity of being there. On my last visit I saw a man redeeming ostrich feathers. Our uncle brought them out tightly sealed in a glass jar.

"What did you 'can,' them for?" the man asked.

"So they wouldn't spoil," said the pawnbroker. "A glass jar is the safest thing on earth to keep feathers in. Moths and dust cannot get at them. Besides, you can keep an eye on them easily, and any trouble that might have been breeding when the feathers were brought in can be discovered and nipped in the bud."

"That hint I consider worth going to a pawnshop for. The way things look now nobody belonging to me will ever have any ostrich plumes to take care of, but if we ever have any I shall know what to do with them."

STREET CLEANER RETURNS $66

W. Russell Osborn, a lawyer, sent a letter recently to Mayor Gaynor telling him about Honest John Comiskey, a street cleaner. A week ago Comiskey, who works in Fifth avenue near St. Patrick's cathedral, found a pocketbook with contained $66 in cash, some papers and an envelope bearing the name of a woman who is a client of Mr. Osborn's.

Comiskey took the pocketbook to the address on the evening and said he did not want anything for his trouble. But Mr. Osborn's client told him he better keep $20 of it to take home against the winter.

"Well, perhaps I will, after all," said Comiskey.

He lives at 329 East Thirty-sixth street.—New York Sun.

NO SMOUGLING!

Diligence in the pursuit of duty is commendable, even in a customs officer, but it would seem that even the logical Celtic mind might have found a reason to suspend the rules in the following circumstances:

An English steamer was wrecked on the French coast, and the survivors were coming ashore, some in tow of powerful swimmers, others clinging to planks and barrels.

Those nearest land were at last heartened by the sight of an approaching small boat. As it bore down on the head swimmers, a figure in uniform rose in the bow.

"Have you anything to declare?" demanded a stern voice.—Youth's Companion.

ALL THE SAME

"I have had nearly twenty offers of marriage in my short career," cooed the fair applicant.

"The theatrical manager looked at her reflectively.

"I don't dispute you," he said. "And I don't object to the phrase short career. But it will be a good deal better for my purposes if you make it twenty divorces and lengthen the career."

"Very well," said the fair one.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

EASILY REMEDIED.

"It must be glorious to belong to the nobility," said Mrs. Gottaolte.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Oldcastle, "but it has its drawbacks. Noblesse oblige, you know."

"Oh, yes, I know that, but a person can always have that fixed by putting in American plumbing."

THE HALL MARK

"Isn't that Marjorie Mincee, the soubrette star?"

"Yes."

"But she hasn't a particle of make-up on her face?"

"She doesn't wear paint and powder on the street any more for fear she might be mistaken for a society leader."—Life.

ELIZABETH KNEW.

Uncle Jack, who was visiting them for the holidays from the west, wished to talk to Elizabeth's father at his office. He could not find the telephone directory and thus appealed to three-year-old Elizabeth for information regarding the telephone number.

"Elizabeth, what does mother ask for when she talks to daddy at his office?" he inquired.

"Elizabeth was wise for her days. "Money," she replied.—Christian World.

UNKIND INFERENCE

A belated election story is floating around about a prominent stock exchange member who ran for the assembly and only got two votes. The morning after one of his friends came up to him and told him that he understood a warrant had been issued for his arrest. "A warrant?" said the astonished broker. "For what?" "For repeating," replied his friend.

D. B. U.

(Detroit Business University)

The oldest and most influential business training school in Michigan is giving today the most modern and thorough courses which fully qualify its graduates for high grade positions.

Tuition costs more in this school than in many others, but the results prove it to be the cheapest in the end. Low grade work and cheap instruction are found in cheap schools. The D. B. U. is not in that class.

We invite you to write for our curriculum and to spend six months with us during the present school season.

Sleep-disturbing bladder weakness, stiffness in joints, weak, inactive kidney action and rheumatic pains, are all evidence of kidney trouble. Mrs. Mary E. Dean, 47 E.
