

29 From Troop 1036 Collect 77 Badges

Junior troop 1036, which meets at Alameda School, hosted a Thinking Day program for the Juniors of Troop 259, also of Alameda School. The flag ceremony and Scouts Own had as their theme, "Girls of other countries all over the world."

The girls used this opportunity to display some of the nice badge work they have been doing. For troop 1036 this was their first Court of Awards for the year. And the 29 girls in the troop had earned a total of 77 badges. For several weeks, the scouts have been meeting with different mothers who have given very generously of their talents and time to help the scouts with the requirements for their various badges.

MARCH was a busy month for these scouts as they sold and delivered some 800 boxes of cookies and at the same time were involved in various preparations for Girl Scout Week. On March 10 they represented their troop at church ceremonies and on March 17 they celebrated their various preparations for Girl Scout Week. On March 10 they represented their troop at church ceremonies and on March 17 they celebrated with their families and attended a big inter-troop birthday party. The girls worked on songs, dances and costumes.

They also celebrated "Invite a Friend" week by inviting non-scouting friends to a Scout meeting to acquaint them with Girl Scouts in Action. These girls are also invited to get in on their World Neighbor badge.

On the agenda is a camping trip to Camp Narrin in May which will help the scouts busy with preparations for the rest of the year.

Cadet troop 1005 has recently had an election of officers. The new president is Cathy Etkin, vice-president, Debbie Hanes, secretary.

ARTHUR K. FALK, JR., 30137 Fox Grove Rd., Farmington, has been appointed director of the interconnection engineering department of The Detroit Edison Company. Falk is a past treasurer of the Branch Homeowners Association and is past president of the Orchard Valley Swim Club.

FHS Trio Place In Forensics

Farmington High School took one second place and two third places in the recent district forensics competition in Oak Park High School.

The competitors first read in the preliminaries and were graded on how well they read. Those with high enough grades became eligible to compete in the finals.

Sue Latham, senior, tied for second place in serious interpretative reading. For the pre-eliminaries she read from "Satan Joan" and "Taming of the Shrew". In the finals she read from "Desiree's Baby."

Two first places in the preliminaries were won by senior Mike McConomy for his reading of selections from "Love Is a Fallacy" and "Love Among the Shutterbugs." He won third place in the finals reading from "Pygmalion."

Junior Nancy Mehl took third place in serious interpretative reading with selections from "The Importance of Being Earnest." In the preliminaries she read from "Come With the Wind" and "Fanny and Zerkow."

One of the many hats of Consumers Power CONSTANT PLANNING

DOLLAR STRETCHER

Before you build a new home, you'd be wise to consult a Consumers Power "Dollar Stretcher." Oh, have your builder consult him. He's the man who can advise you, free of charge, about saving money by proper planning of utilities services in your home. He can show you how, by planning ahead, you can economize on home heating, water heating, air conditioning.

Consumers Power consultants are out working every day, helping homeowners, architects, engineers and contractors to plan for the best economies in building homes and institutional, commercial and industrial buildings. It's part of our business as energy experts.

We do another kind of planning that affects your pocketbook, too. Planning to keep our rates down. In the face of continuing inflation, that's not easy, because all of our costs are rising, too. Add to that our increasing taxes — local, state and federal — and you'll see that we have to plan constantly to find new ways to keep rates low.

(Speaking of taxes, did you know that in 1967 alone, Consumers Power paid more than $80-million in taxes? That's enough to build 12 modern public schools.)

Constant planning. It's a way of life at Consumers Power.
