State Flags Sell Fast

State of Michigan flags are selling like proverbial "hot cakes!" So reports Secretary of State James M. "We hope that persons who ordered their flags and who sent in their $6.50 will be patient, because it may take a couple of weeks to fill their orders," the Secretary of State noted.

Safety Device At War

The General Motors energy-absorbing steering column, designed to save lives and reduce injuries to drivers in automobile collisions, also is minimizing injuries to U.S. fighting men in Vietnam.

The outer jacket, which is the principal energy absorption unit of the automotive column, has been utilized by the U.S. Navy in the development of shipboard equipment designed to withstand shock from underwater explosions such as he hidden mines encountered in the Vietnam waterways.

Application of this energy-absorbing principle for shipboard equipment was developed by Frank Whitten, an engineer at the Naval Ship Research and Development Center, near Washington, D.C.

In an automobile collision, he reasoned, the steering column can compress as much as 8-1/4 inches at a controlled rate in the event of an impact. "Why couldn't the compressible section be used as shipboard equipment under seats and decks to protect GIs from damaging underwater shock?" Whitten asked.

River patrol boats now in use by troops in Vietnam have been equipped with thousands of shock protection chairs and deck platforms. Each chair and each platform uses eight of the energy-absorbing jackets.

The energy-absorbing steering column, produced by General Motors Saginaw Steering Gear Division, has been standard equipment on all GM cars since the 1967-model introduction.
