MSU Forms Opportunity Program

EAST LANSING -- Michigan State University has formed an Equal Opportunity Program and named a professor of education as its first director.

Dr. George A. Johnson will head the program, approved by the MSU Board of Trustees after recommendations from a special faculty committee appointed earlier by MSU President John A. Hannah.

The recommendations include an all-out effort to increase Negro student enrollment and the number of Negro faculty members, and establishment of a Center for Race and Urban Affairs.
