Plymouthite Featured As Graphologist

Alvin Woods, of 9353 Marllyn, will be featured on "Focus," the popular WJR radio program hosted by J.P. Mo-Carthy, as part of the show's week-long series devoted to "Astrology and the Mystic Arts."

When Woods shares the microphone Tuesday, June 11, at 12:45 p.m., he will unfold the mysteries of "graphology," the art of handwriting analysis.

WOODS' INTEREST in handwriting analysis began when his own penmanship came under the scrutiny of a friend who was a graphologist.

"I was fascinated," said Woods, "because his analysis was so accurate."

This fascination led him to take a graphology correspondence course from a Chicago school and he now teaches a course in the subject through Plymouth's adult education program.

His classes are small, purposely so, to allow him to work with each individual student in a subject that at first seems uncomplicated, but which is actually very complex.

"There is a practical application to this work," explained Woods, "and it can be utilized in areas of health, personnel and understanding one's character."

"Many times heart trouble can show up in a person's handwriting as many as six months prior to an actual coronary attack," he said.

THE WOODSES HAVE been Plymouth residents for five years. They have two young children who cannot write, but Woods explains it is possible to determine a great deal about his child's budding character by analyzing his oldest's printing and drawing efforts.

Woods is a pharmacist at the Beyer Rexall Drug store on Ann Arbor Road.

GRAPHOLOGY? — Maybe Alvin Woods, a Plymouth man and expert handwriting analyst, can figure why most top executives have such poor penmanship? What he can do is tell people what they are like by interpreting their scribbling.

ROBERT N. RUE, a former Livonian, has been named president of Gordon College in Barnesville, Ga. For the past year, he has been assistant to the president of Olivet College. Rue went to Olivet from Flint in 1963 to reorganize the Community Education Program. In 1965 he returned to Michigan State University to work on a doctorate in the administration of higher education. He is married to the former Luana Lange and the couple has four small children.

Cooperation Pledged On JD Study

Close cooperation of a special legislative study committee with Gov. Romney's newly appointed special commission on juvenile delinquency was pledged today by Sen. N. Lorraine Beebe (R-12th District), chairman of the legislative group.

"Gov. Romney has named top experts in the field of youth problems to his special commission and I know members of the legislative study committee will be delighted to work closely with them in an effort to provide a meaningful solution to many of the problems Michigan faces today," said Sen. Beebe whose district includes Redford Township.

"Acting in conjunction with the legislative committee, the Governor's citizen commission will be asked to set guidelines and determine specific goals of this important study.
