To the Editor:
May I take this opportunity to extend my gratitude and thanks to the carolers who sang in front of our house.

It is probably little realized, the joy and comfort you have afforded a very old man. As we were going that same evening, Dad, who is 25 years old, was left home.

When we returned home, he related how the carolers had been there; something he had not experienced in the 70 odd years of living in this country. As he is a native of England, it was always an anticipated annual custom. His manner of explanation more than exemplified his appreciation. I am sure, truly, it is the little things we do the things that are seemingly insignificant, that bring the most happiness.

May I add that it a pleasure to be a part of this community, where in this fast world of living there are those who still have time to contribute their time and efforts in keeping the spirit of Christmas alive.

Again I say sincerely, thank you one and all for your devoted time and the enjoyment afforded to a very old man.

It's going to be mighty interesting to watch the progress of Television in 1951. It's come a long way this past year, and by the time we hail in 1952 it'll have gone a long way further. We predict that 1951 will bring a new and fresh array of stars, with a new and exciting assortment of shows. From all indications, it seems that show business in all its various forms is going to hit a new high this year. It's going to help us get more closely acquainted with opera, fine-stage plays, the ballet, road music. And of course, it'll keep right on bringing us the best in comedy and light entertainment. It's going to keep us in closer touch with politics and the international scene. It's going full speed ahead with its educational program. Television will be a great instrument for breaking down racial barriers and prejudices. It'll be the big connecting factor in national brotherhood. In fact, television has its eye on the future, as it takes the pulse of the nation.

We have our eye on your future television needs. And the set to buy... with confidence and assurance is the new 1951 MILLION-PROOF RCA VICTOR set. It's owned and enjoyed by over a million Americans. You too will get the satisfaction and long-range enjoyment you want and need when you choose RCA VICTOR. We have a complete service organization to service and install your RCA set at FARMINGTON RADIO at 33250 Grand River. Phone: Farmington 0047.
