aid money for wildlife projects be funneled in through a formula based on area of the state and number of licenses. Michigan will get only 23 cents per licensed hunter. Nevada, large in area and low in population, gets $13.07 per licensed hunter but can't put up the required matching funds.

Dingell - Johnson receipts derived from tax on fishing tackle take care of fishery projects. Some $2,900,000 was realized last year.

Looks as though Michigan will get its new state office building. National production authority has agreed to release 350 tons of steel. Another application must be made early in January for the next quarter. If it requires as many telephone calls and lots of expensive time to high paid officials it will be cheap to do without the new building.

The state administrative board has approved spending $116,254 for repairs of access roads to 29 state institutions.

Awards for construction in August fell off 13 per cent from July in Michigan.

The "Little Hoover Commission" studying reorganization of state government is dubious about the Little Legislature's legality. The Little Legislature may be called in to authorize expenditure of limited sums for urgent needs when the full legislature is not in session, and has been doing so for years. A constitutional amendment may be necessary to legalize the body's status.

The commission also has rejected a proposal that the highway commissioner and state director of agriculture be appointed by the governor. The commission will investigate duplication of jobs in the latter department.

Michigan State College's fall enrollment is 9.4 per cent less than last year but still 1,000 more students than expected. This is the nation-wide trend.

Potato production this year is expected to be down about 20 per cent — nearly the amount of last year's surplus. Corn probably will show a moderate price weakness during the harvest and near-record production of soy-bean is predicted to depress prices.

LOCAL WOMEN TO HEAR "VEEP" AT TOWN HALL
