Missionary To Speak
At Salem Church Sunday

Miss Louise Vordenberg of San Pedro Sula, Honduras, will be the guest speaker at Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, 32424 Oakwood, on October 14 at 10:00 o'clock. Rev. Carl Schultz announced this week.

Miss Vordenberg has spent over a quarter of a century as an educational and evangelistic missionary in Honduras. Much of her time and energy has been given to Sunday School and evangelistic work among the employees and residents of the United Fruit Company. She has also rendered outstanding service as treasurer of the Mission. Her home is in Cincinnati.

Miss Vordenberg was educated at the Cincinnati Business College; Moody Bible Institute, Chicago; Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.; and later transferred to Honduras on the expiration of her furlough at the end of this year.

PICTURES CAN ADD BEAUTY TO ROOMS IF HUNG CORRECTLY

Pictures can add real beauty to your home but they won't do it if they are put on the wall anyplace and left to hang in mindless confusion.

Sometimes only a small change in the position of a picture can improve its appearance. Or moving the picture to another wall can make a lot of difference.

The MSC specialists suggest that you hang the picture low enough so that it can be seen easily and form a unit with the furniture below it. It should look as if it really belongs to the furniture.

In selecting a picture consider the size of the furniture and the entire picture looks well with horizontal furnishing. A big picture needs plenty of wall space and a large piece of furniture.

The size and shape of the picture should conform with the size and shape of the wall space and the entire picture below it.

Or a wide map can be used to accent the picture and help to distinguish it from the paper.

MSC Food Specialists Give Correct Use Of Eggs For Better Cooking

Hints for getting the most out of eggs, one of the most-called-for recipe ingredients, came recently from Michigan State College foods and nutrition specialists.

The two qualities that make eggs valuable in cooking are their ability to act as thickening agents and their ability to hold air in recipes. A little know-how will help them do these jobs better.

It's the air that's beaten into the eggs, not the eggs themselves, that helps to leaven batters and doughs. And the way the eggs are beaten makes lots of difference in the final product.

Here's how to get the best results from beating. Take the eggs out of the refrigerator ahead of time so they can warm to room temperature before beating. That way they will give better volume to your mix and yolks are to be separated, do so while they are still chilled.

Do not beat eggs until you are ready to add them to the recipe. If the recipe says to beat slightly just mix with a fork, whether it's a whole egg or the separate yolk or white. To beat until thick and lemon-colored, use a rotary beater or electric mixer until the egg becomes lighter yellow and thick.

If the recipe says to beat egg whites stiff, be sure there isn't a speck of yolk in the whites. Use the tip of a clean, dry spoon to remove any yolk that may be clinging to the egg.

Trojans Lose

to the 35. However, the Trojans were unable to penetrate the Inkster defense and were forced to kick. Inkster opened the drive for their third touchdown midway in the third period and drove across on a series of running plays. The white and red team was good and they led 19 to 0. The fourth Inkster score came in the final minute of the period on a quarterback sneak. The try for the extra point was good and Inkster led 26 to 0.

The final Inkster touchdown was scored in the last quarter and again the try for the extra point was good. Clarencville will meet Clarkson this Friday at 2:30 p.m. on the Clarkson gridiron.

First Year Of TV Begins At M. S. C.

More than 50 Michigan State College students have enrolled in the college's first term of television courses this fall.

Four TV courses are in operation this term, a fifth will be added during the winter term and another in the spring. These courses will complete the first year of television training at M. S. C.

With the recent completion of Michigan State's closed-circuit television station, students will have the opportunity of gaining practical experience in TV production, writing, directing, lighting and camera design, along with academic training, according to Dr. Wilson Paul, head of the M. S. C. department of speech, dramatics and radio education.

Students will use the new television station, which makes telecasts from a central studio to several campus buildings, for their laboratory. The TV students also will be part of the working crew for the station's regular TV program.

Brown Trout Harder To Hook Than Brook

State fish research specialists have come up with convincing proof that some brown trout anglers have asplundged for some time: brown trout are a lot tougher to catch than the brook species.

Two years investigation in the Pigeon River area - considered representative of Michigan trout streams - has shown anglers take three brooks for each one remaining at season's end. For brook conservation, department's fisheries research institute says, the average was only 4 of a fish caught for each one in the stream at the close.

The two species are growing at similar rates in the stream but brooks ignore the fisherman's lure long enough to grow to ten inches. Brook angling tests show many more brown trout over ten inches are left at the season's close.

Fishing, by permit only in a five mile stretch of marked stream, has been intense with more than 2,000 annual angling trips recorded since 1949. Annual take in the marked waters has been over 1,000 wild trout, with white rainbows rarely recorded in the catch.

Weight of calf at birth, price of milk and expected selling price of the calf are three factors to consider in deciding whether or not to sell calves for veal. MSC dairy specialists advise farmers.

COOP OVER A BARREL—Truck drivers, traditionally a blasphemous crew the world over, held a tight rein on even their milder expletives when passing this uniformed officer directing traffic in the city of Incheon, Korea. Reason: the cop is a lady. Incheon, a port on Korea's west coast once occupied by the Communists, is today, a booming, free port for Allied control.

MOMENT OF GRACE—With heads bowed, hands clasped, war orphans offer prayers of gratitude before eating their simple dinner in the Incheon Women's Police Orphanage in Korea. Recently, as the result of a letter written by an American woman, the orphanage received 54 foot-lockers of clothing for the little ones, collected by various Washington state groups.

FASHION STYLE OF SATELLITE STELLA—A recent "People's Fashion Show," held in the "Culture Room" of a state-owned factory in the Russian sector of Berlin, offered husky models displaying the "activist combination," a new, utilitarian, all-purpose dress for the Communist and Red-impressed female worker. Since 1945, here has been recreated with the use of imagination and a number of facts pertaining to Russian production methods. The "dress" is actually a combination garment, sleeping bag and shroud.
