men lack hope they turn to the phony promises of communism. Today, however, the Marshall Plan, plus various gestures from the American people such as democracy letters and the American Legion's title of toys, plus the fact that an entire European army is now camped alongside the Iron Curtain, has given the man in the street hope.

A BLEAK CHRISTMAS

Four years ago I spent Christmas in France and New Year's in Italy. It was the most depressing holiday season of my entire life. Paris was dark, the street lights barely flickering, candles were used part time in the hotels; there was almost no heat, food was scarce, and worst of all people had lost hope. Sometimes it seemed that they went through the routine of living merely because they had become accustomed to the habit of living.

Even the great cathedrals and palaces which had looked down on conquerors and revolutions looked empty and dreary. Even they seemed to lack hope.

That was the crucial winter the Communists chose for their deadly strikes and riots to take over western Europe, a winter before we had added the Marshall Plan or begun to send postwar food. That was also the winter when the American people, usually ahead of their government, sent western Europe a token of encouragement, through the friendship trains.

That was the winter of 1947. But this year it is so different!

PLENTRY OF MISTAKES

This optimistic report does not mean that we have not made mistakes, or that the job is finished. We have made plenty of mistakes, and the two most important are:

1. We have failed to sell Europe on a United States of Europe. Here at home we have shown how 48 different states can apply the principle of federalization yet simultaneously live under a central government; yet in Europe we have failed completely to put this across. And this is the only long-term solution for Europe's economy.

2. We have failed to sell the Declaration of Independence in Europe. Though we live under the greatest political document known to man we have failed to get European governments to adopt the principal of "equality" of economic opportunity.

WASHINGTON PIPELINE

General Ike has told friends confidentially that he would run as a Democrat if Taft gets the GOP nomination. He regards Taft's fight-China-now policy as disastrous and his election as a "catastrophe." . . . Why Senator Brewster of Maine, Taft's chief strategist, has a plan to nullify Eisenhower. He would send Taft to Europe, stage a conference with Eisenhower; then announce that Taft would follow any European policy of the general.
