Kindergarten

"Judging Space" is a good energy releasing game for rainy days. The idea is to let the child crawl under and into things. The parent asks, "Can you fit under the chair (or into the box)?" The child tries to crawl under or in and answers, "I can (or cannot) fit under the chair."

Move around the house and try this under beds, many chairs, boxes or tables, and stencils of simple shapes. Give him plenty of paper to work on and show him how to hold the stencil and trace around it. Let him trace as many of each shape as he wants.

BOYS AND GIRLS have fun playing guessing games that increase their listening skills. Show him three objects with different sounds, like a spoon, wooden block, and a pie pan. Tell him to close his eyes and listen while you drop one of the objects. Then he will guess which one you dropped.

To play "Hide the Penny," send him out of the room while you hide the penny in plain sight. As he looks for the penny, clap loudly when he is close and softly when he is far from it. Vary this by letting him hide the penny and clap for you.

Tell your child you will be making sounds and he will guess what you did to make the sound. Have him close his eyes. Then clap your hands (or knock on a door or blow a whistle) and ask, "What did I do?" Reverse the activity.

Ask him to stand on one foot, then the other. Have him jump on one foot, then the other. "Use your imagination," urges Mrs. Bert, "but spend at least a short time each day having fun helping your child learn."
