20 Candidates Run For 4 County Seats

FARMINGTON

Twenty candidates are vying for nominations for Oakland County Commission seats in the four districts which include parts of Farmington Township.

The West-Bloomfield-Farmington League of Women Voters compiled a summary of the candidates. Each candidate was asked to list his or her qualifications for the $6,200-a-year job and answer the question: "What do you believe are Oakland County's most pressing needs and what steps would you take to meet those needs?"

DISTRICT 15

Four Republicans and one Democrat are seeking their party's nomination for this district which includes parts of Southfield, Farmington and Bloomfield Townships, Bingham Farms and Franklin.

ELIOT H. BANK, 25365 Dennison, Franklin, is the sole Democrat running in the district. He has been president of Quality Container Corp., was a public accountant and a controller in a manufacturing plant. He is past Michigan president and national vice president of the Barrel and Drum Association, and is past chairman of the Channel 56 Building Acquisition Committee.

"The most pressing needs of Oakland County are those which affect each citizen in his daily life--law enforcement roads, ecology, taxation, and health," he said.

E. MARSHALL GREENE, 45, of 27170 Skye Dr., Farmington, Republican, is the president of Debt Aid Inc., and Midwest Magic Mist. He received a BS degree in banking and finance from Ohio State University and attended Wayne State University Law School.

He was a captain in the U.S. Army and is a member of the Future Farmington Association, Township and Road Committee, Citizen's Community Inspection Program, the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

He was a precinct delegate to two Republican conventions.

The commission, he said, should "provide only essential governmental services at the lowest possible cost. The bureaucratic arm of government is growing too rapidly and hasn't been sufficiently monitored or regulated by the legislative branch."

LILLIAN MOFFITT, 45, of 6828 Cathederal Dr., Birmingham, Republican, is trained as a technical editor and teacher. She is a member of Project HOPE, the Oakland County Volunteer Bureau, the Bloomfield Hills PTO and the Citizen's Special Studies Committee. She received the 1970 citizen of the year award from Ford Motor Co., and was awarded the Town Crier Bell.

She received her BS degree from De Paul University and did post graduate work at Wayne State University.

What the county needs, she said, is "a balanced budget." The commissioners should take an over-all view of county programs, study issues in depth, base decisions on facts and eliminate concession to special interest or political pressure groups. They should re-evaluate the welfare program, demand accountability from persons elected to boards and commissions and demand a realistic share of gas and weight tax revenue.

"Failure to plead our high volume traffic burden to obtain equitable reimbursement has contributed to the anticipated deficit," she said.

JOSEPH W. ROBERTS, 48, of 23435 Berg Rd., Southfield, Republican, is the theft claims manager in Michigan for Republic Financial Services, a nationwide insurance group. He attended Michigan State University and graduated from several certified business, technical and professional criminal investigation courses.

"The county's most pressing need is alleviation of the heavy burden the property owner is paying in school and property taxes," he said. Road improvement and control of drugs and related crime are top priority items, he said.

NEIL E. WALLACE JR., 42, of 28200 W. Kalong Circle, Southfield, Republican, is a mortgage banker and realtor with the Edward Henkel Co., of Detroit and the owner and operator of two Baskin-Robbins ice cream parlors.

He is a member of the Southfield City Council and previously served on the city's Charter Study Commission and Planning Commission.

He lists as his priorities: "up-to-date road system, a better system of storm drains, preservation of our flood plains to help maintain a proper ecological balance and recreational facilities in the southern part of the county including motor bike trails properly isolated from residential areas and more natural park areas.

"The commission should make it easier for concerned citizens to have a voice in local government," he said.

Four Democrats and one Republican are running for the seat in this district which includes Walled Lake, Wixom, Novi, and Lyon Township and part of Farmington Township.

GLENN R. BETTS, 40, of 22424 Heatherbrea, Novi, Democrat, has worked for Cadillac Motor Car Division of General Motors for 16 years and is a student at Wayne State University's Monteith College. He is a graduate of labor school, Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations at University of Michigan and WSU.

He was research coordinator for the Richard Austin for Detroit mayor committee in 1969, a member of the rules committee in 1969, a member of the rules committee of the Democratic Reform Convention in 1970, a precinct delegate from 1966 to 1972 and served on the steering committee of fiscal reform for education--an income tax lobby from 1966 to 1968.

"It is most important to intensify efforts to establish a system of human priorities. That includes human relations, social services, health care, education, employment and job training, housing, youth and retiree's service, upgrading all law enforcement agencies, crime prevention and equal treatment for all."

BENJAMIN BUNDO JR. 45, of 1003 W. Maple, Walled Lake, Democrat, has been self-employed for 22 years, running a dry cleaning establishment, bowling alley, lounge and restaurant.

He attended Bieritz University and Florida Southern University and spent three years in the U.S. Army Tank Corps.

His priorites are: "Property tax relief, no busing, creating a better business and industrial climate for more jobs and prosperity and providing better facilities for care of the aged sick and needy."

JOHN M. GILLIS, 38, of 1956 Hopkins Dr., Wixom, Democrat, is a vice president in charge of industrial and commercial buildings, real estate and land development. He said he would like to undertake a "crash program" of road building and repair giving priority to the completion of I-696 and I-75.

WILLIAM R. O'BRIEN, 45, of 41131 S. McMahon Circle, Novi, Democrat, has been a government teacher in Southfield since 1952. He is also an associate professor at Oakland Community College. He is a charter councilman and a precinct delegate.

He has held office in the Southfield Education Association, Scouts, Little League, and a homeowners association.

"We should open the communication channels by ending the committee administration of county government and elect an officer who is publicly charged with executing the legislative acts of the commissioners," he said.

"We should demand district representation for all citizens and governments of Oakland County not simply 'toll free calls,' but representation which anticipates and advises constituents such as Novi and Wixom, before, not after, 800 acres of prime zoned industrial railroad land is designated park land by SEMCOG."

LEW L. COY, 52, of 2942 Loon Dr., Wixom, Republican incumbent, is chairman of the Oakland County Board of Health. He also serves on personnel, Legislative and Health Committees of the Board of Commissioners and is Oakland County's representative to the Huron River Watershed Council.

He is a graduate of WSU Mortuary School. He retired as a captain in the Detroit Fire Dept. in 1969.
