Forty-seven per cent of those interviewed ranked the vocational-technical school as the number one new priority for the district, while 41% said some other needs should be met first.

Forty-five per cent of those interviewed believe Livonia should build its own vocational-technical skill center as proposed on the March 29 ballot, while 42% said they would prefer the district to join in a Wayne County system.

Finally, those interviewed were asked their first and second most important sources of news about the schools.

Sources listed as either first or second by at least 5% of the voters included the Observer-67%, talking with neighbors - 28%, children - 26%, PTA - 11%, school newsletters - 10%, friends or relatives employed by schools - 10%, Detroit News - 5%, and children's teachers - 5%.
