Meat Price Line Broken By One Chain

William Horowitz, executive vice president of the metropolitan area's third largest food chain, said price cuts will be seven to 25 cents a pound on beef, pork, lamb and poultry.

The chain of 46 supermarkets cut New York USDA boneless sirloin from $1.98 to $1.48 per pound, all-beef hamburger (28 per cent fat content) from 79 to 69 a pound and turkey roasts from 69 to 49 cents a pound.
