Vignoe Runs For Treasurer

By STEVE BARNARY FARMINGTON

Catherine Vignoe, 43, is the Democratic candidate for Farmington Township treasurer running against Republican incumbent Thomas R. Nolan.

A secretary for Clarendonville school district, Mrs. Vignoe is running on a platform of "neighborliness" in order to make the township a cohesive unit.

"The south end of the township should be working together. We don't have a mutual neighborly concern," she said.

She feels the township board doesn't want anything to do with the south end of the township. She vows to represent both ends of Farmington.

MRS. VIGNOE'S concept of the treasurer's job is one of being a person for hire by her neighbors to care for and control the finances of the community.

"I'm not looking at it as a political gain. I like Farmington Township and the feeling there. I want to offer my services to work to the best of my ability."

Admitting that she doesn't know about all of the issues, Mrs. Vignoe said that she would make it her business to learn, find out and become personally aware.

With a feeling that her opponent is working part time for full time pay, Mrs. Vignoe vowed to either work full time at full time pay or work part time as treasurer on part time pay.

The township treasurer makes $11,000 a year.

ON THE ISSUE of cityhood for the township, Mrs. Vignoe expressed reservations. People think making the township a city would solve the problems and this, she felt, isn't the case.

"I don't want people to be told something that isn't true. Some of those guys that sit up there on the board have a chronic case of verbal diarrhea," she said.

Lichtman Wants City

By DAN MCCOSH FARMINGTON

Incumbent Trustee Frederick Lichtman was highly critical of Earl Peoples' administration and took a strong position in favor of cityhood in a statement to the Enterprise and Observer.

Lichtman is running for reelection as a Republican on a four-name ballot with Republican Margaret Schaeffer against Democrats Michael Zeglen and Maynard M. Gordon.

President of Tulsa Oil Corp., he was elected trustee in 1968. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and the Detroit College of Law.

"ORDERLY GROWTH of our area requires two things: a form of government (cityhood) to plan and implement that growth, and an effective professional administrator who can assist in planning and see to its implementation," said Lichtman.

"Since 1970, township hall has been in a turmoil," he said.

"We have experienced government conducted by a likeable, sociiferous, but ineffective supervisor."

"Many, if not all, decisions and actions emanating from the supervisor's office were aimed at making the best political impression without regard to the needs of the total community."

He has served under two supervisors, he said. "The first was a businessman, the administration of township affairs as well as relations with county agencies were conducted on a businesslike basis."

"That has not been the case during the past two years."

"There is no guarantee that this situation will not occur in the future under the township form of government," he added, in a plea for cityhood.

Schools Planning Live Shows

FARMINGTON

After viewing "Mother Goose" at the Detroit Institute of Arts, Farmington school officials have agreed to bring live arts presentations into the schools.

Mrs. Marlowe Belanger, president of the Farmington Community Arts Council, invited the school administrators to the presentation.

Until now, local children have seen these youth programs only by taking a chartered bus to the Institute.

Now the arts council is opening a new phase by bringing stage performers, who are New York professionals, directly for all students to enjoy.

A teacher guide is provided for each play or act. It is education oriented to the classroom and pupils may talk with the actors.

Attending the Detroit Institute were: Marjorie Van Amedy, deputy superintendent; Larry Freedman, assistant superintendent of elementary education; Donald Cowan, principal of Fairview School; Melvin Blackman, principal of Bond School; Blanche Robinson and Mickey Minor, youth theater representatives; and Mrs. Emma Mackinn, coordinator of the youth program.
