1973 BUICK CENTURY INTRODUCES NEW BODY STYLE

Roof pillars are combined with frameless door glass to produce this new "Colonnade" roof-style in the Buick Century fastback coupe. Front and rear wheel openings are gently flared while the low, horizontally accented grille and the single headlamps allow greater exposure of body color up front.

1973 ELECTRA LIMITED -- BUICK'S TOP OF THE LINE

Buick's finest combination of elegance and unexcelled roadability is provided in the new Electra Limited, shown here in the four-door hardtop version. The new front bumper has been used to maximum styling advantage, providing the base for the new wide, low grille. The wider, more powerful looking headlamps are separated from the grille by a thin fine-line molding that carries the full width of the car.

OPEL INTRODUCES NEW MANTA LUXUS -- Buick's 1973 Open line will feature the new Manta Luxus, combining sport coupe styling with special ornamentation, colors, and interior trim. A manually-operated steel sun roof is optional with either regular or vinyl top. Opels are built by General Motors in Europe and distributed in the United States through Buick-Opel dealers.
