There is more Cataract in this section of the country than in any other district of the country, and until the last few years it was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years the best treatment for cataract and disease and prescribed local remedies, by constantly failing to cure with them, led to the use of surgical treatment. Since then, however, the editor has proven Cataract to be a constitutional disease, treatable by F. J. Cheney & Co., who have the only effective surgical treatment on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drams to 100 drams, according to the degree of the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They fail to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Grace-Pauline

A very quiet young Farmington couple stealthily stole into the M. E. parsonage on last Saturday evening, and when they emerged a few minutes later it was as husband and wife.

The editor had inside information that the happy event was not to occur until the following Tuesday and had been busy making new shoes into old for the occasion.

The marriage ceremony was performed in the presence of only one relative of both bride and groom, by the Rev. Chas. S. Lee when he pronounced Miss Lulu Lucinda Grace and Frederick Charles Pauline husband and wife.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple caught the car for Detroit, and the same evening took the boat for Cleveland for a short honeymoon.

Both are highly prominent in their home village and throughout this vicinity, where each have made their home for years.

The bride is one of Farmington's most prominent young women, and has always held a place in local church and social circles. She is also identified in the business world and for the past several months has, unaided, conducted one of the larger local mercantile establishments.

The groom is a young business man and is well known and highly respected by all who know him.

They will continue to make Farmington their home, and are this week receiving the warmest congratulations of a host of friends having arrived home Monday evening.

Council Proceedings

SPECIAL MEETING

June 22, 1914.

Meeting called to order by Geo. Francis, Pres., and on roll call the following trustees were found present: Walters, Ely, Meyers and Nichols.

Bond of Herman Maas, village Treasurer, was presented and on motion same was accepted.

Motion was made and carried that a drinking fountain be bought and installed.

Motion was made and carried that the sewer intake be tapped when fountain is installed.

F. H. NICHOLS,
Clerk Pro-trom.

Workmen are installing the new drinking fountain on the Main street, and the thirsty will soon have their wants gratified. It is probable that a water station will be installed for the benefit of animals, further down Grand River.

Penal Servitude For Life.

It is a popular error in England that "penal servitude for life" means in reality "for twenty years." Of course it is no such thing. Penal servitude for life means precisely what it says, neither more nor less. True, all life sentences are reconsidered at the end of twenty years, and if the convict's conduct has been all that it ought to be during the whole of that long period he may be tentatively released on a ticket of leave. But obviously that is a very different thing from letting him go free altogether. He is still a convict and will remain one to the end of his days. He has to report himself every month until death frees him, and if he swerves from the narrow path ever so little—and is found out—he goes straight back to jail without even the formality of a trial to be released, as a general rule, never again—London Answers.

Preparing for the Worst.

Mme. Tetrazzini says that one of the most amusing experiences of her younger days occurred when she and her sister were touring together and were leaving some lodgings where they had been very comfortable.

"After thanking the landlady," Mme. Tetrazzini says, "she surprised us both by looking at us in the most kindly and condescending way."

"That's all right, my dears," she said. "I'm always good to theatricals, for I always say to myself that I never know but what my own children may come to it!"

Considering the inclemency of the weather, the Sunday School rally at Harlan's grove in Livonia township last Sunday was a big success. Some of the speakers who were scheduled to talk, failed to appear, but the day passed off pleasantly and successfully nevertheless. The community generally, was represented.

Quite a little excitement was created last Thursday evening about 4:30, when the little Saxon runabout belonging to Mrs. H. W. Ford caught fire, while the gasoline tank was being filled at the Park garage. Several dry chemical extinguishers were used, and the blaze finally subdued. Clarence Bickling managed to reach in and cover the gasoline tank opening. The car was badly scorched, and injured possibly to the extent of $100.

The farm home of Hammond Parish in this township caught fire through a gasoline stove explosion at noon last Friday, and was totally destroyed along with all of the contents, nothing being saved. At the time of the fire, the family was away attending a funeral at La Pier. The loss is estimated at close to $5,000, which is partially covered by insurance carried by The Monitor company. Mr. Grove, who is Mrs. Parish's father, also lost all of his household goods, he making his home with his daughter. The Parish farm comprises 80 acres, and a new house will be erected on the same at once.
