The deputy sheriff arrested two autoists accused of speeding within the corporate limits of the village last Sunday, citing each to appear at Birmingham the fore part of next month. The editor is not fully informed on the law in these matters, but it would seem to us that the matter would better be left to the village authorities within their jurisdiction, there being ample opportunity to catch speeders outside corporate limits in all sections of the county, a fact to which nearly any autoist can testify. Another thing that will not make for the sheriff's office many friends is the fact that the meting of judgement is left to out of town justices in spite of the fact that there are a full quota of similar officers here. One of the accused speeders made the assertion to the editor that the officer apparently purposely turned out to let him pass, and when he showed a burst of speed in passing promptly made the arrest. He claimed to be a business man from Grand Rapids, and says he intends fighting the case. It is admitted that speeding is getting to be more or less of a nuisance, and a matter that the village officials should take some steps to put an end to.
