

NEW YORK WOMEN PLAN HARD FIGHT FOR BALLOT; VOTERS TO DECIDE THIS FALL

New York suffragists won the first skirmish in their fight for the ballot when the legislature voted last week to submit to the voters an equal suffrage amendment to the constitution this fall. Among the more prominent suffragists who will take an active part in the campaign this summer are Mrs. Raymond Brown, president of the New York Woman Suffrage Association; Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blotch, Mrs. Inez Mithelland Boissevain and Miss Alberta Hill.

Glimpses of Married Life

"I have a letter from Mrs. Thorn. She says she is persuaded Mr. Fisk to go for a ride with the rest of the family after dinner. Muriel thoroughly enjoyed the three days. They walked and rode together. On Sunday evening the young folks were alone in the parlor. Fisk was helping her invalid husband to bed.

"I like my new friend immensely," she said in a bantering tone. "I feel as if we had met for the first time. Really, you have conversational powers undreamed of."

"Do you think you can ever learn to care for me?" he asked earnestly. "A keen sense of disappointment held the girl silent for a time. "After promising to say nothing on the subject for a year," she thought. "He is the same irresponsible fellow after all."

"Mr. Morse," she finally said in a grave voice, "I had called him Joe before. I am very much disappointed in you. I had begun to think that all you suggested force of character, but I must return to my old opinion that you just can't stop trying to make me feel all the time. You promised not to mention the subject for a year, and now you break your promise at the first opportunity."

"He rose and went to the window and stood looking out at the dark fringe of the tree branches outlined against the sky. The clock ticked noisily on the mantle and the sap sang in the green loam on the andirons. Finally he turned.

"I think I realize now that I can never thank you care for me. I might better try forgetting you, Muriel."

"Probably you are right," said the girl quietly. "I will shake hands and say good night. Neither of them slept much. Both had been greatly disturbed by the occurrences of the evening."

Morse left early the following morning, leaving the breach as wide as it was the evening before. Neither he nor Muriel was in a mood to give in.

(Further developments in Joe's courtship of Muriel will be related in an early issue.)

if the jolt your refusal gave him should be the means of changing him. There are plenty of things to be said in his favor, when all the truth is told, besides the fact that he has money."

"That is interesting. How old do you think he is?" asked the mother.

"Oh, about thirty," replied the girl, "received a letter from him, too. He says he has so much time on his hands evenings that he has taken up the study of sociology."

"Everyone will agree that he will get more benefit from that than from making love to the new teacher," replied her mother, laughing. "How did school go?"

"All right. I have such dear little people. It is much more interesting than the ungraded work out in Morse's district," and Muriel ran upstairs to her room.

Joe Morse came down to spend Sunday at the Fisk cottage in October and everything went beautifully. Just before Thanksgiving he received an invitation to spend the week-end with Muriel, and accepted with evident delight. He arrived Thursday noon in his new automobile and as Calling the Deaf.

"To waken a deaf person who wishes to be called at a certain time in the morning is about the hardest proposition a hotel clerk runs up against," said a member of that fraternity. "To ring the telephone is useless because the man can't hear. Knocking, for the same reason, is futile. Now and then a guest who has lost his hearing suggests that he leave his door open so we can walk in and shake him, but even if he does appear to be dead game there are so many chances of somebody less guileless than ourselves walking in ahead of us that we can't consent to that simple expedient."

"It seems to me the man who can patent a device for waking the deaf is sure of fame and fortune, not to mention the gratitude of the brotherhood of hotel clerks."

CLEAR UP ALL BAD ODORS.

Nothing Better Than An Onion to Purify Atmosphere.

Everyone knows that an onion has a distinct and unpleasant odor, when it is cooked or raw. But everyone does not know that this odor of an onion will draw to it every other disagreeable odor and clear the house atmosphere in a day.

The onion can then be thrown away and with it go the disagreeable smells that come about in a house that has been closed for the summer.

And this is also a good thing to know. That it will absorb all the odor from fresh paint and turpentine. If the house has been freshly painted and cleaned for the season's occupancy, the people moving into it will be miserable until the smells that come from the walls and floors.

One onion should be cut into small pieces and placed about the room in two or three saucers. Allow an onion in each room and let the saucers remain there over day and night. If every bit of odor hasn't gone in that time put a few fresh pieces in for the next day.

Don't Use Feather Duster.

Don't dust your furniture with a feather duster, it only spreads the dust more than ever throughout the house and causes the necessity for laundering the curtains oftener.

Harsh physics react, weaken the bowels, will lead to chronic constipation. Doan's Regulator operates easily, 25c a box at all stores.

Household Hint

GOOD WHITE BREAD

Get 2 or 3 cents' worth dry yeast the night before you want to bake. In the morning, wash and boil two medium-sized potatoes. While they are cooking put two big granite spoons (twice the size of teaspoon) of flour in dish, one-half spoon salt and one-half spoon sugar. When potatoes are done mash fine (or put through ricer) and add. Add enough water to potato water to make one quart, let come to boil and add one quart cold water.

Put one teaspoon sugar in one-half cup lukewarm water and put in yeast broken up. When potato water is lukewarm, no yeast is light add. Put about three sifters of flour into bread pan, add sponge, put in handful of salt, mix and knead till it is quite stiff and real smooth. Let raise an hour.

Grease hands with lard and knead real good. Use no roller. Let raise till it gets very light, put in pans and raise again. Bake one hour.

Follow this and you will have good bread.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES

Banana Cream Pie—Beat four eggs (reserving the white of two) with half cup sugar until thoroughly mixed, then add tiny pinch of salt and pulp of two very ripe bananas pressed through a sieve. Stir in one pint milk gradually, so as not to curdle, then add a few drops of vanilla. Pour into deep pie tin lined with rich pastry and bake in moderate oven until custard is firm in center. When done cover with meringue made of the whites of the eggs and

SNOW ICE CREAM

When the snow is light and dry, good ice cream can be made very easily.

Beat together three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, one egg, one cup milk, pinch of salt. Cook until thick and, when perfectly cold, stir in enough nice clean snow to make thick; beat well.

This is fine and can hardly be told from any home-made ice cream.
