

SENSATIONAL FRAUD CHARGE MADE IN
WOMAN'S $6,000,000 GRUBSTAKE TRIAL

Mrs. Ella Heim and her daughter Marie.

Startling charges have just been made against Attorney W. T. Hume, former district attorney of Portland, Ore., and widely known along the entire Pacific coast, in an affidavit filed in a San Francisco court in the case of Mrs. Ella Heim, who is suing for a $6,000,000 grubstake share which she claims in the rich Ophir mines of Alaska. Joseph Wright, former acting postmaster at Nome, is Hume's accuser. In his sensational deposition he asserts that Hume, who is of counsel for Mrs. Heim, offered him a percentage of the final fruits of the suit if he would testify for his side.

GAMBLING IN FUNERALS

A curious point was disclosed in the House of Lords debate on the Assurance Companies bill. Lord St. Aldwyn said that under the existing law, which had never been observed, policies to meet the funeral expenses of a parent were illegal. There had thus grown up, he said, a system under which collectors had visited houses and persuaded women to insure a sum to cover the funeral expenses of persons in whom they had no insurable interest. The whole thing was really a raffle. Lord Hamilton, of Dalrieth (for the Government), said that the position both for policy-holders and companies, might be very unfortunate unless legislation took place such as was proposed. There was danger that some people might be like a panic, with disastrous results, might ensue. The Government had been in communication with the insurance companies, who, having had a very great fright in consequence of recent legal decisions, undertook that if the government got them out of the hole they found themselves in they would put their house in order. London Daily Mail.

Worn on the Scaffold.
The corporation of Shrewsbury have just had presented to them by the Walcott family, of Bitterly Court, Shropshire, for their museum, the scaffold erected in front of Whitehall Palace, where he was beheaded in January, 1649. The cloak was secured by William Walcott, who was in that city on the scaffold. It was then in the possession of the Walcott family for 260 years. Home Notes.

STOPS SHOOTING ALLIGATORS TO RUN AWAY AND WED

Mrs. Clarence C. Dushmeier.

This young woman is now on a honeymoon tour in the United States with her youthful husband. She met him in the Panama canal zone a few weeks ago, when she joined an alligator shooting party. It was a case of love at first sight. They stopped in a swampy place and were married in a hurry. Young Dushmeier is a member of the engineer corps at Gatun.

LARGE FEES TO DOCTORS

King Edward's Health Has Cost a Princely Sum.

King Edward's health has cost a huge sum. When, as Prince of Wales, he was seriously ill some years ago, Dr. William Jenner attended him for four weeks and received a fee of £10,000 ($20,000). Another £10,000 was paid to Sir Walter Gill for his attendance on the king during his serious illness from typhoid in 1871, while his physicians who attended him during his severe illness in the coronation year received fees amounting to £20,000.

The famous Prof. Zacherline, of Moscow, received from the father of the present emperor of Russia, a fee of £15,000 for two days' attendance. Sir Morell Mackenzie received £20,000 for a few weeks' attendance on the late Emperor Frederick of Germany, and Queen Victoria's doctors. In her last illness, received £2,000 each.

Some time ago W. K. Vanderbilt, the American millionaire, requested his physician to accompany him on a voyage. The doctor hesitated, and remarked that his practice was worth £200 a week. The man of money finally agreed to give him £2,000 for the six weeks' trip and pay all his other expenses.

Blind Dr. Gale, of Bristol, was paid the sum of £50,000 for curing the diseased knee of a wealthy gentleman. Senator Mages paid Dr. Browning the stupendous fee of £200,000—undoubtedly the largest fee on record. The late Shah of Persia paid Dr. Goleman, of Paris, £5,000 for curing him of an affection of the eye. Dr. Frank Billings claimed £5,000 for seven days' attendance on Marshal Foch. Glimpses of Married Life

BY MISS F. A. LEONARD.

Nell had been house cleaning and rearranging the furniture in the bedroom. She surveyed her work with pardonable pride. Every article of furniture was in a different place except Dick's desk, and that had no castors on the corner. Besides, it had to stay near the electric light. The crowning triumph of her rearranging was her opinion was the bed, with the head across the corner. The embroidered pillow cases showed to the best advantage. Dick, don't make the mistake of emphasizing trifles. This thing will blow over; just put her up a little because she's over-tired. Dick's physical condition makes all the difference in the world as how he bears things. Here comes father. "Don't punish father for the unpleasantness. Dick was only a little out of his mind, and she put her arms around his neck.

"Come in, father. It's a long time since we've been over here to dinner." Dick was helping him off with his coat. "Don't punish father for the unpleasantness. Dick was only a little out of his mind, and she put her arms around his neck. "Please, don't punish father for the unpleasantness. Dick was only a little out of his mind, and she put her arms around his neck.

Wonderful Rock Garden
Englishman Has a Three Acre Reproduction of the Matterhorn.
The largest rock garden in England is that of Sir Frank Crisp, at Priar Park, Henley. It is a faithful reproduction of the Matterhorn on a scale of about three acres. Seven thousand tons of limestone was brought from Yorkshire to make it.
The snow capped peak is represented by quartz. Below it are thousands upon thousands of alpine flowers growing in pockets between the rocks and filling every chink in the trails that ascend the mountain. There must be two hundred different species in bloom at once.
At the base of the mountain, says Country Life in America, is a miniature Swiss chalet, where one may sit and enjoy the scene, comparing all the main features with a little Swiss model of the Matterhorn which Sir Frank had made for the entertainment of his guests. A brook courses down the mountain side and just before it reaches the chalet it forms a pretty cascade and then spreads out at your feet into a miniature lake decorated with pygmy water lilies and richly margined with pink, primroses, gentians and other alpine flowers.
Indifference is the one thing capable of freezing the milk of human kindness.
True Nobleness of Life.
The nobleness of life depends on its consistency—clearness of purpose—quiet and ceaseless energy. All doubt, and repenting, and blotching, and retouching, and wondering what it will be best to do next, are vice at well as misery.—John Ruskin.

Organized Thought.
Today there is no such thing as organized thought. The thought of the world is a jumble, a mass of unorganized, unconnected, unmeaning, unsequence, no end of a delirious result. It should be organized.

"At Your Service" At All Times.
Every day brings with it new evidence to convince me that it DOES pay—this "service" that we hear and speak so much about. It has been my constant aim for the past years in this, the ever-progressive House of Hudson, to leave no stone unturned to secure to my patrons the BEST in the way of "service" that is possible for human intelligence and human power to give.
And for my efforts, I assure you, I feel richly repaid, for the results could not have been more gratifying. And now this "service," together with my new and conveniently located department in the Woodward building, has combined to give me a list of satisfied patrons of which I can be justly proud.
