of the California Fig Syrup Co. and the scientific attainments of its chemists have rendered possible the production of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, in all of its excellence, by obtaining the pure medicinal principles of plants known to act most beneficially and combining them most skillfully, in the right proportions, with its wholesome and refreshing Syrup of California Figs.

As there is only one genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna and as the genuine is manufactured by an original method known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only, it is always necessary to buy the genuine to get its beneficial effects.

IN AGONY WITH ECZEMA.

Whole Body a Mass of Raw, Bleeding, Torturing Humor—Hoped Death Would End Fearful Suffering.

In Despair; Cured by Cuticura.

"Words cannot describe the terrible eczema I suffered with. It broke out on my head and kept spreading until it covered my whole body. I was almost a solid mass of sores from head to foot. I looked more like a piece of raw beef than a human being. The pain and agony endured seemed more than I could bear. Blood and pus oozed from the great sore on my scalp, from under my finger nails and nearly all over my body. My ears were so crusted and swollen I was afraid they would break off. Every hair in my head fell out. I could not sit down, for my clothes would stick to the raw and bleeding flesh, making me cry out from the pain. My family doctor did all he could but I got worse and worse. My condition was awful. I did not think I could live, and wanted death to come and end my frightful sufferings.

"In this condition my mother-in-law begged me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I said I would, but had no hope of recovery. But oh, what blessed relief I experienced after applying Cuticura Ointment. It cooled the bleeding and itching flesh and brought me the first real sleep I had had in weeks. It was as grateful as the cool, purifying touches I would bathe with warm water and Cuticura Soap, then apply the Ointment freely. I also took Cuticura Resolvent for the blood. In a short time the sores stopped running, the flesh began to heal, and I knew I was to get well again. Then the hair on my head began to grow, and in a short time I was completely cured. I wish I could tell everybody who has eczema to use Cuticura. Mrs. Wm. Hunt, 105 Thomas St., Newark, N. J., Sept. 26, 1908."

The Prince of Grumblers.

When Mr. Bowen asked if he did not find many unreasonable people among his summer boarders, Farmer Jay quickly asserted:

"Lots an' lots are never satisfied anyway," he said. "No matter what's done for 'em there'll always be something wrong somewhere.

"Now last summer," he went on, with a gleaming eye, "we had a man here that was so fond of grumblin' that one day he actually called for a toothpick after he'd had a glass of milk."—Youth's Companion.

Too Much Gravity a Bad Sign.

There is a false gravity which is a very ill symptom; and it may be said that as rivers which run very slowly have always the most mud at the bottom, so a solid stiffness in the constant course of a man's life is a sign of a thick bed of mud at the bottom of his brain.—Saville.

Sore throat leads to Tonsilitis, Quinsy and Diphtheria. Hamlins Wizard Oil used as a gargle upon the first symptoms of a sore throat will invariably prevent all three of these dread diseases.

LIFE AND WORKS ACCORDED PRAISE

NATION'S MEN OF WORTH IN TRIBUTE TO ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

PRESIDENT MAKES ADDRESS

Qualities and Deeds of the Great President Set Forth by the Chief Executive in Impressive Speech—Immense Concourse Gathered to Witness Exercises in Connection with Laying of Corner Stone of Memorial Hall.

Hodgenville, Ky.—The corner stone of the splendid memorial to be erected to the memory of Abraham Lincoln was laid by President Roosevelt. The exercises were participated in by many of the nation's leading men, Cardinal Gibbons and ex-Gov. Folk of Missouri being among those who made addresses.

From all points, by train and over roads not particularly smooth at this season of the year, the people gathered to the exercises. A building four times the size of the tent provided could not have accommodated the crowd.

The corner stone of the Memorial hall was laid by President Roosevelt. In an impressive address the chief executive eulogized the life and work of the great statesman. He spoke as follows:

"We have a right to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of one of the two greatest Americans of one of the two or three greatest men of the nineteenth century. One of the greatest men in the world's history. This rail splitter, this boy who passed his early years in the dire poverty of the poorest of the poor, in whose case was by weary and painful labor, raised to lead his people through the supreme agony of a great war, which emerged purified as by fire, has come to a higher life. After long years of iron effort and of failure that seemed more often than victory he stood close to the leadership of the republic at the moment when that leadership and the existence of the republic were alike threatened by the most terrible of all civil wars. He was a man of singular self-mastery, combining serene self-confidence with profound humility. He had the courage of his convictions, and an abiding faith in the people and in himself. In his admirable first inaugural address he said: 'I am loth to close. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection.' And again, in his second inaugural, with the shadow of coming death upon him, he said: 'With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan, to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.'

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

"He stands as well-nigh the ideal of a great American statesman. He was a man of the most profound convictions, and he had the courage of his convictions. He was a man of intense sympathy with his fellow men, and he had the power of translating his sympathy into effective action. He was a man of shrewd wit, of quaint humor, of tenderness, of gentleness, of charity for all, of broad and deep understanding of his fellow men. He was a man of the most commanding ambition, and he was a man who entirely subordinated his ambition to the performance of what he deemed his duty. He was a man who could not be moved from his path by any appeal to fear or favor, by any clamor of the passing hour, by any seduction of anger or hatred, but he was also a man who could not be moved from his path by any soft sentiment, by any sympathy with weakness or with pain, when strength and pain must be faced in order to secure the triumph of the right as he saw the right. He was a man of the most intense and broad humanity, and he was incapable of bitterness toward his fellow men. He was a man of profound religious feeling, and his writings contain many references to the Deity which show how firmly he believed that the hand of God was laid upon the children of men for good or for ill, and that in the fulness of time punishment fell upon the sinful nation that tolerated the wrong. He was a man of deep and tender feeling, who had himself experienced to the full the bitterness of sorrow, and who therefore knew how to deal tenderly with his fellow men in their hours of trouble and distress. He was a man of profound faith in the power of democracy, because he was a man of profound faith in the ability of the plain people to see clearly and to act rightly when the facts were presented to them in proper form. He was a man of profound and abiding religious faith, and therefore believed that while we must act as we see the right, we must remember that our finite powers need the support of infinite wisdom.

"Of all the men who have striven valiantly for the country he loves best, he is the greatest and the best beloved. He has become the centre of affection for all Americans, for all lovers of freedom in every land. He was a man of deep religious feeling, and he would have scorned indeed to claim credit for himself in this life, but he surely has his reward in the love which all men bear him after death. He was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, and now for many a generation his fellow countrymen, and men of all countries who love freedom, will mourn with the mourner and will rejoice with him who triumphs in the hour of victory.

"Lincoln's Deep Foresight.

"Lincoln saw into the future with the prophetic imagination usually vouchsafed only to the poet and the seer. He had in him all the lift toward greatness of the visionary, without any of the visionary's fanaticism or egotism, without any of the visionary's narrow jealousy of the practical man and inability to strive in practical fashion for the realization of an ideal. He had the practical man's hard common sense and willingness to adapt means to ends, but there was in him none of that morbid growth of mind and soul which blinds so many practical men to the higher things of life. No more practical man ever lived than this homely backwoods idealist; but he had nothing in common with those practical men whose consciences are warped until they fail to distinguish between good and evil, fail to understand that strength, ability, shrewdness, whether in the world of business or of politics, only serve to make their possessor a more noxious, a more evil member of the community, if they are not guided and controlled by a fine and high moral sense.

Lessons from Lincoln's Life.

"We of this day must try to solve many sound and industrial problems, adjusting to an especial degree the combination of indomitable resolution with cool-headed sanity. We can profit by the way in which Lincoln used both these traits as he strove for reform. We can learn much of value from the very attacks which, following that course brought upon his head, attacks alike by the extremists of revolution and by the extremists of reaction. He never wavered in devotion to his principles, in his love for the union, and in his abhorrence of slavery. Timid and lukewarm people were always denouncing him because he was extreme, but as a matter of fact he never went to extremes. He moved step by step, and because of this the extremists hated and denounced him with a fervor which now seems to us fantastic in its dislocation of the unreal and the impossible. At the very time when the side was hailing him up as the arbiter of social revolution because he was against slavery the leading abolitionist denounced him as the 'slave hound of Illinois.' When he was the second time candidate for president, the majority of his opponents actually believed the nature of what they termed his extreme radicalism, while a minority threatened to bolt his nomination because he was not radical enough. He had continually to rise above those who wished to go forward too fast as well as above those who wished to go backward at the time that he overrode the opposition of those who wished to go forward at all. The goal was never dim before his vision; but he picked out his way cautiously without either half-or over-haste as he strode toward it, through both a morass of difficulty that no man

Man of Great Toleration.

"It is perhaps the most wonderful thing about Lincoln—the most wonderful of all the many wonderful things in the life of this great American—that while he was the most intensely loyal of Americans, while he was the most intensely American in his character, while he was the most intensely American in his love of the flag and all for which it stands, he was also the most typically American in his power of striking hands across the gulf which had yawned between the men of the north and the men of the south. He was himself a southerner by birth and by early training, and all of us, wherever we dwell, grow to feel an equal pride in the valor and self-devotion alike of the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray, so this whole nation will grow to feel a peculiar sense of pride in the mightiest of the mighty men who mastered the mighty days, the lover of his country and of all mankind; the man whose blood was shed for the union of the states and for the freedom of a race, Abraham Lincoln."

It doesn't take a wonderful mind to scheme, but it does take one to keep from it.

MONEY MADE IN LIVE STOCK IN CENTRAL CANADA.

W. J. Henderson, visiting Seattle, writes the Canadian Government Agent at Spokane, Wash., and says:

"I have neighbors in Central Canada raising wheat, barley and oats for the past 20 years, and are now getting from the same land 20 to 30 bushels of wheat per acre, 40 to 60 bushels of oats.

"It was the first week of May when I got my tent pitched, but the farmers all around had finished putting in their crops, so I only got fifteen acres broke and seeded. They advised me as it was late not to put in much wheat, so I put in five acres of wheat and ten acres oats, one-half acre potatoes and vegetables. All kinds of vegetables grow well up there, sweet corn, tomatoes, onions, carrots, peas, beans, cabbage. My wheat yielded about 20 bushels per acre, for which I got 76 cents, others got 80 cents; oats threshed 35 bushels per acre, for which I got 35 cents per bushel. You see I was three weeks late in getting them in, still I was satisfied.

"From my observation, there is more money made in stock, such as cattle, horses and sheep, as prices are high for such, and it costs nothing to raise them, as horses live the year around out on the grass. In fact, farmers turn their work horses out for the winter, and they come in fresh and fat in the spring. Cattle live out seven or eight months. They mow the prairie grass and stack it for winter and give oat straw. My neighbors sold steers at $40 each, and any kind of a horse that can plow, from $150.00 up. I raised 60 chickens and 5 pigs, as pork, chickens, butter and eggs pay well and always a good market for anything a man raises, so I have every reason to be thankful, besides, at the end of three years I get my patent for homestead. I heard of no homestead selling for less than $2,000, so where under the sun could an old man or young man do better?"

Unknown to Science.

The eight-year-old son of a scientist showed a sudden interest in photography.

"Dad," he said, "they photograph comets and meteors and flying birds and lightning flashes and all sorts of moving things without any trouble, don't they?"

"Yes, my son."

"Then how is it they can photograph a boy without putting his head in an iron frame?"

Easy Come, Easy Go.

A passerby at Broad and Lombard streets in Philadelphia one heard the following dialogue between a laborer who was digging in a sewer and a stout, beaming lady with a capacious market basket on her arm:

"Ah, good marnin' to you, Pat," said she leaning over and looking into the pit. "And what are you doin'?"

"Good marnin', Bridget," he replied, looking up. "I'm a-earnin' alimony for yees. And what are you doin'?"

"Sure, I'm a-spendin' it," replied Bridget airily, as she trotted off.—Lippincott's.

A Darky's Letter.

A New York business man was cleaning out his desk the other day and tearing up his old letters when the colored porter, who was in the office, spoke up and said: "Boss, gimme one ob dem letters?"

"What do you want it for?"

"I promised to write a letter to my old mammy in Nort Carlina, but as I hasn't larned to write yit, I can jes' send her one ob dem letters you hain't got no use for. Hit will make her feel good, hit will."

The gentleman gave the affectionate son a patent-medicine anti-fat circular, which was duly mailed and addressed.

The Secret of Poverty.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York unlocked the secret of general poverty in an address at the American Museum of Natural History in New York early this month, when he said: "What is killing the people of this city may be stated as overwork, underfeeding and overcrowding; and two of these may be included under the one word 'underpaid.' The message of the church and of medicine to-day to the community is not 'Give to the poor,' but 'Don't take so much away from them.'—The Public.

GOOD CHANGE
Coffee to Postum.

The large army of persons who have found relief from many chronic ailments by changing from coffee to Postum as a daily beverage, is growing each day.

It is only a simple question of trying it for oneself in order to know the joy of returning health as realized by an ill, young lady. She writes:

"I had been a coffee drinker nearly all my life and it affected my stomach—caused insomnia and I was seldom without a headache. I had heard about Postum and how beneficial it was, so concluded to quit coffee and try it.

"I was delighted with the change. I can now sleep well and seldom ever have headache. My stomach has gotten strong and I can eat without suffering afterwards. I think my whole system greatly benefited by Postum.

"My brother also suffered from stomach trouble while he drank coffee, but now, since using Postum he feels so much better he would not go back to coffee for anything."
