THE DAIRY Horticultural Points

WORST FOE TO GOOD HEALTH Constipation is Starting Point of Many Serious Ailments That Affect Dairy Cattle.

By G. W. BARNES, Live Stock Specialist, Arizona Experiment Station. Constipation is one of the worst foes to good health in cows and to the pocketbook of the dairyman. It is the starting point of many serious ailments that affect dairy cattle.

Constipation causes the cow to have fever which makes such a case really more serious. There is also a marked decrease in the milk flow, and often this is the first symptom that the farmer notices.

No Two Cows Alike

No two cows are just alike. For that reason we must study them all separately and see what each one needs. The cow that is low on milk will use more grain to advantage than one that has not yet begun the season's work.

Cow is Often Neglected

The trouble with the majority of farmers is that they do not give time for the attentions that bring out the best qualities in the individual. No dairy cow, however good, will be producing as much milk as she will if she is not given the right care and if that her development is looked after, and that she is given good shelter and feed.

"How about this little one?" asked the baggage master, resting his head on his top. "Oh, that!" replied the lady contemptuously. "Ten or twelve dollars will cover that one."
