The heighth of a silo should be as twice the diameter. Do to use linsed oil, or coal tar thinned with gasoline. The inner walls of the silo should be as smooth as possible, so as not to hinder the uniform settling of the silage.

Extra capacity may be easily gained by using a dome or hip toof. Always anchor a stave silo, using from three to four guy wires, always keep the hoops of a stave silo well tigbtened as the silo is emptied so the staves will not warp and to prevent racking by wind. When filling the silo mild. When filling the sit is the staves of the staves have the hoops to prevent the great strain from brasking some of them.
