TOWN JUDGED BY PAPER

"Show me some copies of the paper published in your town and I will tell you some facts about it and your people."

The man, who said that was an ctive business man, who was considering an expansive proposition The information he wanted was all in issues of a weekly newspaper.

He wanted to know about the stocks of goods carried by the merchants, to judge of their business capacity by the style and amount of advertising they employed—the paper would show him. He wanted to know something of the social activities of the town which the paper would show him.

He wanted to know something of the pursuits of the people in the town and the condition of the surrounding country. The paper would show him. He would scan those papers care fully and would be able to give the information as he had stated.

He would judge of the business prospects from the advertising colums, of prospective selling pos-sibilities by the local happenings, of the tastes and intelligence of the people by the reading matter the paper gave its readers, and whether they were a progressive, alert or an easy going and comparatively in

Your paper tells the story fully to the active, observing business nan, who never saw your town or ts people.

If the town merchants are not all represented in its columns it would nell "Little business" a bad knock or the town. If the local columns howed a scarcity of news and little of the social life it would spell in glaring letters "Nothing doing." If there was a lack of high class up to-date reading matter on the livest topics of the times, it would spell for him-----?

The investigation would end and the town passed over as not worth considering.

So then the weekly paper is for fifty-two times a year showing people who do not reside in the town just how to judge if it is a business and social center.

CHILDREN HURT BY NOISES

How the Little Ones Suffer From the Various Commotions of a Big City.

Very faw mothers realte how ex-tremely sensitive young children are to noises of all kinds and how much of their "naughtiness" is due to nerv-sus striktation set up by all the house-hold noises of the day. To a certain extent every woman who has the care of children realizes this fact. When the baby goes to bed all the house is hushed in order that this fact. When the baby goes to bed all the house is hushed in order that it may sleep.

But once the child awakens no consideration is shown to its tender nerves, and the evil consequences to the child's health are often very serious and cling to it all through life.
Doctors are always insisting on this paramount characteristic of the young harmount characteristic of the young harmound tharacteristic of the young child and any mother who observes the child when a door is banged, a dog barks or a street trader shouts will notice its distress. At every bang or other sudden noise there is a nervous, frightened start.
The result of a day's noise of all kinds to young children, especially if they are delicate, is a state of nervous depression and triftation.
This is commonly mistaken for temper and anguithness, but it is really the competition of the competition, that their appetite falls and their digestion is thrown into disorder.

Have That Reputation All Over the World, and it Would Seem Well Deserved.

Americans have the reputation of being extremely fond of jewelry. This is because they are known the world over as being great buyers of pearls, diamonds and other precious

But we have a close rival in this fondness for costly finery in the Hin-dus. The men and women both are extravagantly fond of jewelry. The very poorest often wear gold rings set with pearls. They wear rings in their noses and ears and upon their fin-gers and toes. The arms and ankles are often decorated with bracelets of

Anyone can demonstrate the pressure of the atmosphere by the simple experiment which follows:

On the flat of an iron lay a thin sheet of rubber—part of an old to-bacco pouch will do. Place as snall, thin lid containing some wadding soaked in spirils of wine on the rubber and ignite the spirits. Then press a wineglass down tightly over the flame. the flame.

When the flame dies out it will be When the flame dies out it will be found that the two articles are firmly united, and may be suspended by a wire, and some time will elapse before they separate. The expla-nation is that the flame consumes the oxygen in the glass and lowers the pressure, when the greater pres-sure of the vitconhere, sureers the sure of the atmosphere squeeze articles together.

GRAHAM BREAD.

It is claimed that the healthiest of all breads is graham bread, so named for the American physician who invented it. It is made of wheat and corn, both grains being so coarsely nilled that they contain almost all of the outer husk of grain. No yeast js used in baking it. The dough is softened and made porous dough is sortened and made profus by a process of steaming, the water remaining in the dough through this process being evaporated while bak-ing. Graham bread can be taken by the weakest stomach without in-jury.

ELUSIVE IMPRESSION.

"I listened to your speech with close attention," said the man who tries to be pleasant, but fails.
"And did it set you thinking?"
"It did. And the next time you deliver it I'm going to listen again and see if I can find out what I was thinking about."

DRESSING TO PLEASE.

"It's just 'clothes, clothes, clothes' all the time," growled Mr. Cobbles. "Don't you women ever think of anything but clothes?"

"Why, yes," answered Mrs. Cob-bles. "Occasionally we think of you men and then we go and buy more
