THE REPEATER PAR EXCELLENCE

ALL ILLS CURED BY WALKING

That is the Belief of New York Professor, Who Cures 500 Miles a Month.

Prof. Charles Gray Shaw, head of the department of philosophy of New York university, who has just completed a walk from Philadelphia to New York, ninety miles, in a little less than 24 hours, recommends walking as a panacea for all ills, mental and physical. A New York correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch writes: "During the last three months he has walked, altogether, 1,600 miles, an average of more than 500 miles a month. A little journey of 35 or 40 miles a day he considers a mere nothing, a foot march in the woods. And for regaining mental poise, relieving distressing nerves, expelling worry, there is nothing, like it from the professor, equal to a good long walk. He belongs to the peripatetic school of philosophy. 'Walking is the most valuable exercise in the world,' he said. 'Also it is the cheapest. It is one of the best ways of cheating the doctor and the undertaker. Walking, in the first place, draws the blood from the head to the feet. Then, when one walks, there are so many delightful trivial things to engage one's attention away from oneself; the color and shape of the clouds, the flowers and the horizon, the amusing and transitory companies of the road. And you are obliged to walk more, too. Their complications and figures would improve if they did. Most people take too short steps and walk from the knee. The further up the body the swing comes, the less strain.'

Dissipation and Health.

Here's another neighborhood story from Columbia, Tenn. An aged mother, it seems, was scolding her oldest son for some of his bad habits. "Ain't you 'shamed of yourself," she exclaimed, "to be chawin' tobacco and smokin' that old pipe? You are jes' ruinin' your health."

"But listen, ma," replied her son, "an' seventy years of age, ain't I?"

"Yes, you is," admitted the mother.

"But maybe if you didn't chaw an' smoke you'd be ninety now,"—Youngstown Telegram.

"Kidded" the Inspectors.

The other day two sanitary inspectors were making a round of the cottages in a certain English village. During their visit they came to one where lived three adults. On being admitted, after waiting about ten minutes, one of the inspectors said, angrily: "How many persons are there in this house?"

"There are five," answered the man of the house.

"Five?" exclaimed the inspector. "There have to be two less in it."

"So there will when you two get out," was the sarcastic reply.

The Housewife on World Politics.

"The war is keepin' them all guessin' ain't it, Henry?"

"Yep. Nobody can guess what Greece is going to do next."

"And it's just the same with butter. There is no tellin' how high it is going."—Des Moines Register.

Think of It—

People cut out tea or coffee before retiring when these beverages interfere with sleep. In the morning they drink freely of them, strangely overlooking the fact that at whatever time of day the cup is drunk the drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee is irritating to the nerves.

THE STORY OF EUGENE ARAM.

CERTAIN romantic features of the crime and trial of Eugene Aram appealed to Thomas Hood and Bulwer, the Victorian cross, the cross of the Legion of Honor—all of those are decorations given by the war chiefs of Europe. But the "wooden cross" that costs more than all others. That is the decoration given by Molech.—Chittanaga News.

To Save Nut Trees.

The Northern Nut Growers' association is trying to save the fine nut trees, says a circular just sent out by the association. The association was founded a few years ago by a surgeon, a family physician, a lawyer, a professor of horticulture and a plain ordinary enthusiastic nut tree lover, of course. Along with the many others who have joined them, they have learned how to graft the nut trees, and they believe that we would have orchards worth $500 or more per acre if they were composed of trees as good as the best native trees now growing wild right here in the United States.

Has Two Hats Now.

"I found such a wonderful bargain," said Mrs. Flatter. "What was it?" asked her husband, a resident of Back Bay. "You know I went downtown to buy a hat. Well, just as I got in the store they put up a sign, 'All hats at half price.'"

"So you only had to spend half of the money you intended."

"Oh, no, I bought two hats instead of one."

The Difference.

Uncle Ezra—So you've just been down to New York, Eben? What's the difference between a big town and a little one? Ebenezer—Well, in a big one the crowd follows the fire engine to find out where the fire is, and in a little one the fire engine follows the crowd to find out where it is.

Round about round is the way the pugilist ascends the ladder of fame.

who was educated and clever, directed operations, and Clark and Houseman did the coarse work. Aram was exactly popular with his associates. He was domineering and treated them contemptuously. He spent his evenings in his cottage, reading and studying, while they were running and dividing the spoil. Naturally, they felt that their faces were being ground by the iron heel of tyranny.

One evening they made an especially good haul, having disposed of some goods which had been obtained by fraud, and when they called upon Eugene to declare a dividend, he complained that the cottage was close and stuffy, and invited them to take a walk with him. Aram and Clark went on ahead, into a field. Presently Houseman heard them quarreling, and then heard the scolding of a club striking human flesh. He ran to the scene of the disturbance and found Clark lying dead. Houseman was badly rattled and ran away. The next day he visited Aram's cottage, and Eugene threatened him with all kinds of catastrophes if he spoke of what he had seen. Knowing that Eugene was dangerous, Mr. Houseman preserved a masterly silence, and the murderer moved away from the neighborhood.

The village sleuths got busy and traced him to King's Lynn, where he was quietly employed as an usher in a school, and from that school he was led forth "with gyves upon his wrists." He made a strenuous defense when placed upon trial. There is no record that he ever denied committing the crime, but he tried to prove his innocence by technical stratagems. The weak point of the prosecution was that the only direct evidence against him was the testimony of Houseman, and it was generally agreed that Houseman couldn't tell the truth without undergoing a severe strain. Aram's first contention was that the bones were those of a woman, but the medical practitioners soon disposed of that. There were many witnesses who testified to the good character of the prisoner, and Aram cried out passionately that his days were honestly laborious, his nights intensely studious. Then his lawyers tried to show that the condition of the bones didn't necessitate homicide murder. The bones of this skeleton were fractured, but so were those of the Archbishop of York when exhumed in 1723, and he certainly was not murdered. Every trick known to the advocates of the accused was resorted to, but all in vain. The jury found him guilty, and Aram was returned to his cell to await the executioner.

This is the history of a crime which is recorded in itself a crime committed by a man who had no other claim to distinction than a handsome face and an education better than the common. Yet, after a century and a half, crime and criminal still live in song and story because they happened to engage the attention of two great geniuses of the pen.

TRAINED FLEA FOREVER LOST

Col. Harta Boetum Relates Sad Story Concerning Fate of His Truly Wonderful Pet.

"I've observed a lot about trained fleas," heard Col. Harta Boetum meditatively, "but I've yet to see the trained flea that could hold a candle to my Rudolph."

Several members of the Necks to Nature club rose occasionally though remembering circumstances elsewhere and, just as casually the colonel got to the door ahead of them, locked it, and slipped the key in his pocket.

"Yes, gentlemen," he continued, "Rudolph is the world's champion trained flea. He could count up to a hundred by wiggling his legs, touch after one hundred his legs got to trol. He could also turn handspindles, do a perfect cat's-horn, climb himself eight times and do all sorts of stunts on his little parallel bars. I only wish I had him to show you gentlemen now."

"Run away from you, did you, colonel?" asked Trembly Spiffs sarcastically. "I wouldn't call it that," replied the colonel with his sweet smile. "It came about like this. I was showing him to an old North American Indian—Chief Dirty-Neck by name, reputed to be one hundred and six years old. Well, most unexpectedly, while turning a backward somersault, Rudolph lost his balance and tumbled right down the old Indian's neck. Dirty-Neck fished for him, grunted, said 'Here, Rudolph, colonel,' and put him in my hand. But when I ordered the little fellow six times to do a handstand and he never moved, I realized that it wasn't Rudolph at all. By that time Dirty-Neck had moved off and Rudolph was lost to me forever."

And the colonel closed the door with his sweet smile and returned to his study.

Interrupted Problem.

A correspondent whose veracity in small matters has hitherto remained unquestioned, writes the following from one of the mushroom camps of the desert: "The other night Chukavaler Poley, the most important caught here. The point was a mass of flames when the camp volunteer fire department arrived. Prompt measures were necessary to avoid a total loss, but the mine bookkeeper had been so overcome by the glare. He set out a figure which was the cheapest—to let the shack, consisting of lumber costing $150 a thousand, burn down, or put it out with water heated 15° in miles and costing $5 a barrel. While he was figuring, the shack burned down and we never did hear which way the figures pointed."—Engineering and Mining Journal.

Drinking of Water

(By V. M. PIERCE, M. D.)

The general conclusions of the latest Medical Scientists prove that drinking plenty of pure water both between meals and with one's meals is beneficial to health. It has now been proven by means of the X-rays and actual tests upon many healthy young men that the drinking of large amounts of water with meals is often beneficial. Therefore if you want to keep healthy drink plenty of pure water (not ice water), both with your meals and between meals. If you ever suffer from backache, lumbago, rheumatism, or any of the symptoms of kidney trouble—such as deep colored urine, sediment in urine, getting out of bed at night frequently and other troublesome effects, take a little Anuric before meals. These Anuric Tablets can be obtained at almost any drug store.

GREAT ACTOR ON HIS DIGNITY

Richard Mansfield's Rebuke to Subordinate Who Spoke Lightly of Theatrical Production.

With reference to his discrimination in the use of the well-known English language, it is possible to overdo the thing.

By living into the truth of recollections for the suitable illustration to adorn this remark and point the moral, we find it in Richard Mansfield's occupancy of the Garrick theater in New York days of his glory.

To Mansfield this theater was a temple. He tolerated no lightly spoken references to it. One day, when an attaché reported, Mansfield gave instructions and started for his dressing room.

"I'll see you after the show," said the business lieutenant in parting. "After the show?" repeated the actor-manager, with dignity. "Are we acrobats?"

"After the performance," replied his associate, humbly. "The performance," exclaimed Mansfield. "Are we acrobats?"

"I'm very sorry," mumbled the crushed manager; "I'll see you after the play, sir."

"I shall be pleased to see you then," answered Mansfield.

AN APPRECIATIVE LETTER.

Mr. M. A. Page, Osceola, Wis., under date of Feb. 16, 1916, writes: Some years ago I was troubled with my kidneys and was advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

It is now three years since I finished taking these Pills and I have had no trouble with my kidneys since. I was pretty bad for ten or twelve years prior to taking your treatment, and will say that I have been in good health since and able to do considerable work at the advanced age of seventy-two. I am glad you induced me to continue their use at the time, as I am cured.

Bumper Grain Crops

Good Markets—High Prices.

Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses

The winners of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The best improved Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains, is the excellent cattle feed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels.

Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.
