

SC Has Room For More

Students have signed up for nearly 2,000 credit hours in community services classes at Schoolcraft College this fall. Although this more than doubles the 900 credit hours recorded last fall, Director Ron Griffith reports there are still openings in many interesting classes.

Griffith named these classes in which openings still exist: Secretarial refresher CPS II; office time management; Lamasue child-birth education; writing and analysis of poetry; basic chess; advanced Biblical archaeology; security officers institute; drug abuse here and now.

"Registrations now will have to be in person," the director said, "because we have gone beyond the time we can accept them by mail." This can be completed on campus from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays; and on Wednesday evening from 7-9 at the switchboard in the administration building.

'Mets,' If Abused, Can Kill

Question: What are A's?

Answer: A's, Azz, etc., equals A/S for Amari Stone, one of the manufacturers of methadone. Methadone (quads) is used mainly as a sedative or hypnotic (sleeping pill) agent. Contrary to popular opinion and claims by some drug companies, prolonged use of quads may cause physical dependence (addiction) and psychological dependency similar to that of barbiturate addiction.

Withdrawal from the drug can result in death if detoxification is not properly supervised. Quads mixed with alcohol have an additive effect and can cause death.

Question: Don't people die from mets (methadone)?

Answer: Yes they can, if this drug is abused. It is a central nervous system depressant just as heroin, and like heroin, street methadone is generally used in conjunction with other "downers" (barbiturates). Also like heroin, it has an addictive effect.

Persons who inject methadone in a non-hospital setting run the risk of several illnesses, including hepatitis, skin ulcers and infections.

Older Persons Offered Courses

Fitness after 50 and pre-retirement planning are two classes of special interest to older men and women being offered at Schoolcraft College late in September.

"Fitness" is a class for older adults interested in an individually designed fitness program. The class will meet three times a week for eight weeks, beginning Sept. 24.

After registration by mail, students will receive a form to be signed by a physician indicating any special problems to be taken into consideration. The pool and exercise equipment will be available with qualified instructors to lead the program.
