Nautical themes and pinstripes answer the question "Little Man, What Now?"

"Little Man, What Now?"

In 1934 "It Happened One Night" stole the show and captured every movie award going. Unfortunately, its spotlight performance overshadowed a group of excellent films including "Little Man, What Now?" a love story starring Margaret Sullivan.

This season "Little Man, What Now?" makes a spunky comeback, this time in the fashion world. The stars are little tykes dressed to the hilt in remakes of the older generation.

Though dad's wardrobe somewhat overshadows what's new in children's wear, more often it does set the pace. But when Pop puts on the Gatsby look, Johnny will follow suit.

THE FAIR-<sup>HAIR</sup>ED look of Gatsby appears in pale colors of yellow, blue and pink in V-collared jackets with matching shorts and accented with a little white shirt.

Mother's influence is not forgotten in easy-to-care-for cottons, denims and blends.

Denim continues to be a wardrobe necessity, appearing in pants, jackets and even swim trunks.

The nautical theme is again incorporated into little men's wear. Anchor prints, sailor suits and the like make any little guy feel like a sailor.
