Hills offers trees for spring planting

The Farmington Hills beautification committee is offering a special discount on seven types of trees for spring planting.

Included in this year's program are:

- Silver Maple - a vast growing tree which reaches 50-60 feet in height.
- Thornless Honey Locust - a rapid growing tree for open spaces. It grows 50-60 feet and tolerates heavier soil which must be well-drained.

- Norway Maple - a dense tree ideal for the small yard.
- Russian Olive - grows well in problem soil areas in the city.

Ornamental trees which will also be available are Mountain Ash, excellent for attracting birds, Hopa flowering Crab, and the Corkscrew Willow, which grows well in wet areas.

All the trees are potted, and five or more will be delivered in the Farmington area with no delivery charge.

For less than five, there is a charge of $1.50 per tree.

Trees may also be picked up at the Farmington City Hall parking lot Saturday, May 4, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Deadline for ordering the trees is April 29.

Make checks payable to the Farmington Hills treasurer and mail to 31555 11 Mile Rd., Farmington Hills, 48024.

Northwestern hearings on in committee

By APRIL KORNILLER

LANSING—Some 2700 signatures have failed to persuade 11 members of a Michigan House of Representatives committee that the Northwestern Highway project should be given lower construction priority.

Members of the House Roads and Bridges Committee failed to garner enough votes Wednesday to send House Bill 5697 before the entire House.

That bill, introduced by Rep. Philip Mastin (D-Hazel Park) sought to remove the Northwestern extension from a list of 20 top construction projects for the state.

The state highway department has proposed that the 9.3 miles of freeway be constructed from existing Northwestern Highway at Telegraph Road northwest to M-275 in Commerce Township.

C.W. Greenleaf, the governor's executive assistant for legal affairs, promised to present the petitions and the views of the three groups to the governor on his return from Toronto that day.

HE CAUTIONED, however, that the governor had already gone beyond normal practices by suspending further land acquisition for the project until the environmental impact hearings are held.

"It is admittedly a rather traditionally circumscribed role for the governor in a situation like this," said Greenleaf in reference to the governor's influence on the constitutionally autonomous state highway department.

It will take another majority vote by the house roads and bridges committee before the Mastin bill can again be reviewed.

THE BILL, IF passed by the House of Representatives, would have delayed the starting date for the controversial highway project.

Representatives of three citizen groups armed with 2,600 signatures opposing the construction of the freeway, listened last Wednesday to the 4-3 vote to send the Mastin bill out of committee.

That vote fell two short of the number of votes needed to allow the bill to pass onto a general vote by the House of Representatives.

Representatives from Concerned Citizens of West Bloomfield, Concerned Citizens of Franklin and the Council of Homeowners Associations of Farmington Hills Inc. spoke in favor of the Mastin bill before the vote.

Voting in favor of passage of the bill were Rep. Josephine D. Hunsinger, (D-Detroit), Rep. Rosetta Ferguson (D-Detroit), Rep. Raymond J. Smit, (R-Ann Arbor) and committee chairman Rep. Michael Novak, (D-Detroit).

VOTING AGAINST were Rep. Frank V. Wierzbicki, (D-Detroit), Rep. David S. Holmes, Jr., (D-Detroit), and Rep. Mark L. Thompson, (R-Rogers City).

Four other committee members were absent during the vote.

"We were not successful at this time, but I'm not giving up hope," said committee chairman Novak, after the vote was taken.

Immediately after the meeting, Novak took the three citizens group representatives to meet with an aide to Gov. William Milliken.

Greeney-Sundquist FUNERAL HOME

Dear friends,
One of the penalties life exacts for love's fulfillment is the anguish of grief. It is a mixture of anxiety, anger and despair over the loss of a loved one, and the greater the love, the deeper the grief. Feelings of anger and guilt, as well as sorrow, must be confronted and surmounted by the bereaved if he is to regain normal emotional health.

Respectfully
