Bonnie Cashin designs a simple, suede sport suit

Cashin designs outlast today

Cashin's winter wrap-up features grey suede with matching wool check

A simple, understated and classic motif inspires every Bonnie Cashin collection. But every season that theme gets a new twist.

The Cashin fall collection, shown recently at Jacobson's, combines suede, leather and fabric into timeless designs.

Simply cut jersey dresses are trimmed with color coordinated leather strips. Canvas jackets feature leather sleeve patches and collar trims. Sleeves are raglan, pants are narrow, and brass jacket closures are Cashin's signature.

Colors range from sporty grey checks to rusty suede to bright oranges. In natural materials, the look is rich and uncluttered.

CASHIN FANS generally think of the clothes in terms of investments. Prices range from $150 for a canvas jacket to $400 for a fur trimmed leather coat.

But a more important part of the investment is material and style, which are durable and undated. Because of that, the clothes outlive the flimsy here-today, gone-tomorrow designs.
