

Sound levels are doctoral subject

Schoolcraft College administrator Ronald J. Monette has completed a doctoral program at Wayne State University.

His dissertation for the PhD degree in industrial education was a survey of school laboratories to determine if their sound levels were within ranges prescribed by the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

sound levels as they affect student health.

Presently director of placement, Dr. Monette has been at Schoolcraft since 1964. He began as an instructor in drafting technology, later establishing the apprenticeship program which he served as coordinator and director.

He launched his doctoral program during sabbatical leave in 1971-72. He said numerous people assisted in his study, singling out Lee Hite of Livonia and his WSU advisor Dr. Willard M. Bateson for special thanks.

Hite, a field engineer with General Radio Corporation, provided acoustic assistance and the precise electronic measuring equipment used in the study.

A graduate of Mackenzie High in Detroit, Dr. Monette holds bachelor's and master's degrees from WSU. He resides with his wife, June, and daughters, Cathy, 12, and Amy, 7, at 30125 Fernhill Drive, Farmington Hills.

AIDE Center calls for volunteers

Is there any kind of volunteer work I could do for the Community Commission on Drug Abuse in the areas of awareness, education, prevention or rehabilitation besides working on the crisis rapline?

A.B. Livonia

There is a multitude of areas open to people who wish to volunteer their time.

For example, one of the newest projects going is the free community workshop series for people who have a special skill or talent in a particular area and are interested in conducting such a workshop are needed.

There are two workshops just finishing, one in photography and the other in beginning art. These workshops are open to everyone.

To volunteer or learn about the programs, contact the Westland AIDE Crisis Center, 522-3760 or the Livonia AIDE Crisis Center, 261-3760.
