CLOSING EXERCISES.

Farmington Schools Closed For The Summer. Programs for The Week Were Presented in Fine Shape.

Commencement for the class of 1909 has passed and now the teachers and scholars can have a vacation. The past few weeks have been busy ones for all interested in the school. The programs announced in this paper were carried out in a manner pleasing to parents and patrons of the school.

PROMOTION EXERCISES.

The hall was crowded on Wednesday evening of last week and although the weather was very warm the people good naturedly remained for nearly three hours to witness and listen to the long three-part program.

In part one the recitation of Murray Moore, the Up-side Down drill, the Flag drill, and the Indian club exercise were the features deserving of special mention.

In part two the program was somewhat pretentious and a little too formal, but the young people did very nicely and the songs of the parting scene with the large chorus of boys and girls gave a very pleasing touch to that part. Mr. Crosby's address in presenting the eighth grade diplomas to the class, which consisted of three girls and four boys—four from the village and three non-residents pupils—was worthy of more thoughtful consideration than it could hope to receive under the circumstances. One thought presented should be emphasized, and was recalled for another.

North Farmington School Graduating Exercises.

It is not a common occurrence for a public school teacher to receive as flattering a testimonial of her efficiency and the gratitude of her pupils and the patrons of the school as was shown Miss Ruth Baker at North Farmington Tuesday evening. The schoolhouse was crowded and the windows were filled.

The following composed the class, all of whom had taken the eighth grade examination prepared by the state and had successfully passed the ordeal: Arthur Geister, who gave the President's Address; Elva Geister, the Class Historian; Blanche Anglim, who spoke on the class motto, "More Beyond"; Allie Nichols and Ethel Graham, who together handled the class prophecy and Mae Johnson, who held the honored place of class valedictorian.

Merle Graham and Leone Simpson assisted by singing.

Mrs. M. Benjamin gave two instrumental solos and Mae Johnson and Blanche Anglim sang a duet.

Miss Baker gave a very appropriate recitation for the occasion
