

Halston adopts 'big fur' look

The big look achieved in fur was previewed for fall in Halston's fur collection shown at Jacobson's, Birmingham, last week.

The New York designer adopted mink, nutria and other furs to execute styling characteristics widely used this season.

The full-proportioned mood was translated into a mink coat with easy, swinging lines. The airy, cape-feeling of the design was echoed by the knee-covering length which swirls around the leg.

IN OTHER fur adaptations of the big look, Halston added an oversize fur collar to the neckline of a natural lynx coat and large patch pockets to another.

A more casual feeling was achieved in Halston's jacket compliment to the skirt-and-boat-look. Suede boots and an easy-moving tweed skirt are natural partners for the designer's golden amber jacket of natural nutria.

The informal mood was achieved through turned-back cuffs, open neckline and unbuttoned center front styling.

You are invited to our informal showing of the Eleanor Brenner for Brenner Couture Fall/Holiday Show for our Young Signature Dress Collection

Thursday, August 29
10:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.

Eleanor Brenner designs for the woman of good taste with a full, active life, and who depends upon well-made clothes that are comfortably easy to wear, and totally feminine. The Brenner mood is that of subtle, graceful silhouettes with soft, gentle-motion for day and evening. Sizes 4 to 16.
