Recycled barn beams

One-hundred-year-old barn beams from the Barber farm on Nine Mile have been converted into an entry way to the Gill-Power Nature Area, a small stretch between the two schools. The converters are members of Boy Scout Troop No. 226 led by Earl Smith who are aiding in some of the ambitious projects students of the schools have for developing the parcel. The scouts got into the picture through their affiliation with SOAR (Save our Natural Resources.) Evert photo.
