

How to locate money for college

 The program. Graduate students are not eligible.
 This grant cannot be less than $200 or more than $1,500 per year. The normal extension limit is four years, but may stretch to five if the course of study requires the extra time.
 If you're selected for this grant, your educational institution must provide you with additional financial assistance at least equal to the amount of the grant.
 To apply, talk to your financial aid officer. He is responsible for determining who will receive an SEDG and the amount.
 The COLLEGE WORK-STUDY PROGRAM (CWS) provides jobs for students who have great financial need and who must earn a portion of their educational expenses.

 You are eligible if you are enrolled at least half-time as a graduate, undergraduate or vocational student in an approved postsecondary educational institution.
 On- or off-campus jobs with a public or private non-profit agency are arranged by the participating institution, which allows up to 40 hours of work per week.
 CONSIDERATIONS for the program include (a) your need for financial assistance (b) your class schedule and (c) your health and academic progress.
 The GUARANTEED STUDENT LOAN PROGRAM enables you to borrow directly from a bank, credit union, savings and loan association or participating lender who is willing to make the educational loan to you. The loan is guaranteed by a state or private non-profit agency or insured by the federal government.

 Although you don't need a high school diploma, you must be enrolled or have been accepted for enrollment at least half-time in an eligible college or university, school of nursing, or a vocational, technical, trade, business or home study school.
 The maximum you may borrow on a yearly basis is $2,500 (less in some states) with the total amount for undergraduate or vocational study being $7,000. Interest charges may not be more than seven per cent.
 To apply for the Federal Interest Benefits, you must submit to the lender a recommendation from your school as to the amount you need.

If you qualify, the federal government will pay the interest for you until you must begin repaying the principal.
 DON'T WORRY if you don't qualify for the Federal Interest Benefits. You may still borrow, but you will have to repay your own interest.
 In either case, you must submit an affidavit that the loan will be used only for educational purposes, and the loan must be repaid.
 Payments begin between nine and 12 months after you graduate or leave school. You must pay at least $500 per year whatever the size of the loan, and your time limit is 10 years.
 You have a three-year breather if you are serving in the armed forces, Peace Corps or VISTA or for any time you return to full time study

Recession swells

FARMINGTON—Recessions aren't all bad.
 Sliding enrollment figures, which two years ago provided the impetus for (fingertail) chewing and hair pulling among college and university officials, have now taken a sharp turn upward, allowing officials to settle back in their chairs and breathe a collective sigh of relief.
 "Our mail registration in November was higher than ever before in our history," said Donald Nichols, dean of students at Oakland Community College (OCC).

 As of Wednesday, with two days left for registration, the total student registration figures showed an increase of 400 over last year's winter semester for the Orchard Ridge campus.
 "We usually have a 12 percent drop in enrollment from fall to winter semester. This semester, we may not even have a drop at all," he said.
 New jobs were created by the increase as the college sought to accommodate the swelling ranks of students.
 The staggering economy was partially credited with keeping people in school or giving them more free time through lay offs and overtime cut-backs to pursue additional education.
 "The new students are there to acquire skills they hadn't had before or to strengthen the ones they already have," he said.

OCC enrollment

"Many of them are going in to business administration, data processing, food service technology, business education and secretarial fields," Nichols said.
 Oftentimes, the students are already graduates of another institution where they received teaching degrees or majored in some esoteric field, he said.
 He's optimistic about the growth of vocational careers.
 NOW THAT they're getting the skills, we hope that they will stay on and get into other programs," he said.

 The new trend has changed the face of the typical student.
 The median age has jumped from 20 to 24, with the growing numbers of marrieds and older women whose children are no longer dependent upon them adding a different tone to the college scene.
 We noticed the trend about two years ago," Nichols said.

Fire guts home; 10 uninjured

FARMINGTON—A family of 10 escaped injury after an early morning fire gutted part of their home Monday.

The public safety department received an alarm at 3:29 a.m. after an officer on patrol saw smoke coming from the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Bruce, 2206 Powers.
 Children, sleeping in the basement of the two-story home, were awakened by the smoke and alerted the rest of the family, police said. The entire home, including the attic, was occupied.
 The fire is said to have started in the basement and spread to the floor and through the walls by the time firefighters arrived.
 After Bruce made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue the children's 72-year-old maternal grandmother, his 17-year-old son Steve, led her to safety.
 Thirty firefighters including the eight-man volunteer unit responded to the blaze which took three hours to quell.
