GM Girls offer new cookbook

By ETHEL SIMMONS
Are you a cookbook collector? If so, you've probably got more than you need. Just one big, fat encyclopedia of cooking could last you for a lifetime of meals.
But every cookbook has at least "one more" recipe that is irresistible. So, there you are, adding another cookbook to your collection.
Good cooks actually get around to making lots of these dishes. Some people simply browse and dream, having a marvelous time turning the pages, reading the recipes and looking at the pictures, without cooking anything at all.
A new cookbook out is "Favorite Recipes," a treasury compiled by the General Motors Girls' Club of Detroit.

IT'S A CHUBBY book — at 200 pages plus — with a bright yellow cover and tab dividers. The black-accent thick spiral lets the pages lie flat.
Recipes are submitted by members and friends, in the tradition of cookbooks put together with everyone's favorite.
Each section is prefaced with a sketch and appropriate quote, plus handy hints for cooks and such on the other side of the page.
"Rolls — Breads," for example, relates:
Breathes there a wife with soul so dead;
Who to her husband has never said:
"This is my own real, homemade bread."
The practical hints offered are "Common Causes of Failure in Baking."
BREAD RECIPES include apricot cordial, tea bread, butter-scotch nut bread, carrot bread, Mexican spoon bread, nut bread, orange marmalade nut bread, pumpkin bread, Sally Lunn (sweet bread), strawberry nut bread and walnut bread.
Other cookbook sections are devoted to hors d'oeuvres, party & TV Snacks, soups and Salads, beverages, casseroles, one-dish meals, meats & poultry, seafoods, vegetables, pies and pastries, candies and cookies and cakes and frostings.
All 342 recipes are no-nonsense printed ingredients followed by directions for preparation and name of the contributor.
THE END of each section provides space to write in extra recipes.
This is the second cookbook compiled by the GM Girls' Club, the first came out five years ago.
Proceeds go toward the many Michigan charities supported by the Girls' Club which include, in Oakland County, Providence Hospital, the Foundation for Mentally Ill Children, the Clinton Valley Center and the Oakland Branch YWCA.
The cookbook at $3 is available from the General Motors Girls' Club, 11-142 General Motors Building, Detroit, 48202.
