Active verbs

ACTIVE, adjective, 1. In action; moving. 2. In a state of action, not passive or quiescent.

If there's one thing men aren't this spring, it's passive, neither about their clothes or what they do. Exercising and the methods of doing it, have become a number one function in the American male's lifestyle and this spring he's dressing for the part in practical styles and bright colors.

For spring Oleg Cassini designed a tennis and golf collection that puts color onto the court and the greens.

Bright yellow, blues, greens and red are frequent in the collection for Munsingwear and an emphasis is placed on coordinates throughout.

An interesting note for active clothes lies in early morning runs. No longer are warm-up suits dull sweatshirt fabric and navy blue or grey only. Stretch terry in bright colors, pullovers, zip fronts or buttons make warming up almost as much fun as playing the game.

For the beach, there are more cut-off blue jeans and traditional trunks. Bikini shapes are back, as are a longer legged, more squared swim trunk. Hawaiian prints or solids are the options and cover-ups arrive in long terry cloth robes or cotton caftans.

The active sportswear is for the active man. Even if you don't play the game all that well, at least look like you do.

SEE THE
"ALL NEW"
'75 280-Z...

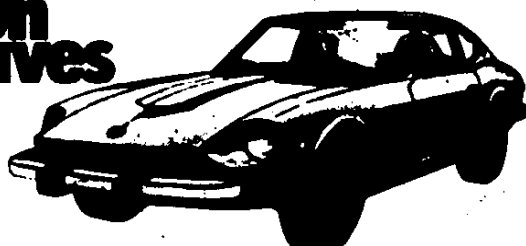

'75 sees the latest and most technically refined of the Datsun Z's. The new 280-Z has more of everything: in comfort, luxury, performance. But the most important and the performance is a new computerized fuel-injection system. This says the new Z can offer a great deal more power without sacrificing gas mileage. Following is the Z tradition, you'll find a lot included in the available other price. (The power window, front disc, independent suspension, radial tires, ABS, radio and air, leather, leather, leather.)

Come try the 280-Z
... Feeling is Believing
