and chrome etagere filled with living plants.

'Cleaning that thing is a real task,' Mrs. Miller confided, suggesting to her designer that perhaps it should come equipped with a gardener.

The basic taupe color scheme is interrupted by touches of cerise and magenta in the colorful art on the walls and in other accessories.

All of these elements are elegantly reflected in the brushed stainless steel sheathing on the fireplace which turns a corner to serve both the living and dining areas.

A large square dining table is surrounded by eight chairs and a custom designed and made buffet credenza lines one wall.

All window treatments are as simple as possible to keep the look clean. Ceiling to floor draperies line the living and dining room window walls and Roman shades were used in the intimate small living room.

The kitchen is devoid of any clutter as are the other rooms, and it is a spotless example of the fastidious housekeeper's art.

One acquiescence to tradition is the couple's bedroom suite. According to the Millers the traditional French designed pieces were 'just something we couldn't give up.'
