

Leslie Masters painted a mural over the bed and unusually shaped foam seating banks

Salays added dramatic touches in various areas. An antique chandelier hangs over the antique dining room table. The lavatory was transformed into an old inn with rough plastered walls imbedded with straw in the matrix. An antique mirror replaces the circa 1950s mirror that was there.

One of the dining room windows is covered with a large tapestry helping tie in the living and dining areas visually.

Where the Salays have installed custom-made draperies in the living room, the Masters opted for custom-made wall-to-wall white vertical strip blinds.

The Masters' walls are as filled with the artwork of Mrs. Masters as the Salays are with his work and it is these deft touches which make the homes individual and comfortable for them selves and their guests.
